THE BRITISH KING made his speech from the throne yesterday while unemployed workmen were marching with rather poor music to the House of Commons.

The King said, "Our relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly," or rather the Prime Minister, who wrote the speech for the King, said it.

The important part of the King's speech announces that a protective tariff has been abandoned.

A King who says whatever the people want him to say, keeps out of politics and lives decently, isn't a bad system for the British Empire.

DR. L. E. HOLT is dead in Peking. Many children that would have been dead without him are alive, thanks to his intelligent care. And many mothers have been taught by him how to take care of their children. His death is a loss to the intelligent practice of medicine. Fortunately able men survive him, such as Dr. Kerley, in New York; Dr. Abt, in Chicago. In every city are men of scientific knowledge and devotion to duty, protecting the children. Hence the falling death rate.

ANOTHER earthquake in Japan, with fifty known dead thus far. It seems as though Nature, having afflicted other regions with Spanish influenza and the curse of war, determined that the Japanese should not escape. The world will sympathize with the courageous nation.

SUCH disasters compared with the bulk of the earth are very slight, a mere shiver. They remind you of the earth's extraordinary stability and steadfastness through the ages.

Traveling five hundred and eighty million miles a year around the sun, carrying its thin atmosphere with it, this earth is a marvel of safe transportation.

PRICES are still rising. Where will they end—especially building prices? Builders of a tunnel under the Hudson River to unite this United States continent with the city of New York by vehicle traffic call for fourteen millions more than they thought they would need.

Miss Anne Morgan, consulting as to the right location for a working woman's hotel and club, finds she must raise four and one-half millions, whereas two and one-half millions would have been enough when the thing first started.

IT ISN'T bad, however. Fourteen extra millions for the vehicle tunnel, two extra millions for the working girls' home and club mean that men and girls are getting paid better than they were.

Higher prices, higher wages really mean high prosperity

NEW YORK is unnecessarily excited about the marriage of a young man, Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten, to a young lady supposed to inherit forty to fifty Standard Oil millions from her grandfather, H. H. Rogers.

WHEN Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, then Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, married her only daughter to the Duke of Marlborough, she remarked that it was better than marrying her to a cocktail-drinking little nobody

DORCHESTER WOMAN ACCUSED OF MURDER

HUSBAND SLAIN BY WIFE, SAYS EX-SUITOR

Mrs. Elias Khouri Hunted as Result of the Story Told by Conscience-Stricken Youth

Mrs. Matilda S. Khouri, of No. 39 Norfolk street, Dorchester, is being sought by the police on a charge of murdering her husband, Elias J. Khouri, Dorchester fruit dealer and former prize dancer. Khouri was found dead in the bedroom of his home on October 8 last.

A twenty-year-old youth, who says he was Mrs. Khouri's sweetheart, has confessed to the police. He says that Mrs. Khouri told him she had murdered her husband.

At the time of the shooting neighbors who rushed to the Khouri home found Mrs. Khouri and her three children kneeling at his bedside. She was crying frantically, "Speak to me, Louie, speak to me."

Mrs. Khouri told the police her husband was worrying over financial difficulties. Charles Kurker, a neighbor, was the one who called the police.

SUITOR REVEALS MURDER.

Brothers of Khouri doubted the story told by the wife. They said the dead man had no financial worries and insisted he had been murdered. An investigation was started, but nothing ever came of it.

Today Mostafa Kurker, twenty-one, of No. 37 Norfolk street, walked into Police Station 19, Mattapan, and told the following story:

"Elias Khouri was murdered by his wife. She and I were sweethearts. She told me she shot him. I went to New York and tried to forget. But my conscience has kept me awake nights and I have been troubled.

"Finally I could stand the strain no longer. I felt that I must share the secret with someone. I came back and told my brothers. They advised me to go to the police.

"Some time before the murder, while I was keeping company with

$25,000 DAMAGE IN BROOKLINE BLAZE

Fire, of undetermined origin, swept through a block of one-story stores at Coolidge Corner today, resulting in damage which will run well over $25,000.

The fire was discovered in the cellar of the E. E. Gray Co. at No. 1372 Beacon street. It spread to the Eagle Fruit Company, No. 1378, and then to the Farquharson Candy Shop and ice cream manufacturing plant.

When the blaze hit the candy shop it melted the ammonia containers connected with the soda fountain. For a time the fumes made fighting the flames almost an impossibility. Firemen worked their way through the smoke and shut off the ammonia.

Heavy smoke turned back the fire

2 INJURED IN SUBWAY CRASH

Trailer Car Breaks Loose and Smashes Into Two Others Near Park Street Station

Two persons were injured and a score of women shaken up and rendered hysterical today when the third car of a three-car Lechmere-Kenmore train broke away from the two forward cars on a cross-over between the Park and Boylston street stations and crashed into the two cars ahead.

One woman suffered an injured elbow as a result of being thrown against a seat, and a man whose knee and ankle were wrenched was assisted to a taxi which took him home.

All three cars were carrying their full quota of passengers, but no one of those in the first two cars was injured when the crash came.

Seeing that he had lost the third car the motorman applied his brakes, and the heavy trailer, which had gathered considerable momentum piled into the second car.

The accident caused a delay which lasted until another car was sent out to push the disabled cars through. Many passengers alighted from stalled cars and walked through the subway to the Park street station.

OPPOSE CHANGE IN LAW FOR MINORS

Relief from criminal liability on the part of persons who illegally employ minors in good faith was the proposition heard today by the committee on labor and industry, Senator Albert T. Rhodes of Worcester, the petitioner, is absent in Chicago. Chairman Howard of Reading kept the case open for him to put in his argument and heard the opposition today.

The opening of a loophole for the employment of a minor who might misrepresent his age for the sake of getting employment was opposed by Charles J. Hodsdon, legislative agent for the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor, who insisted that the law should be kept as it is for the protection of labor.

LEVENSON DESERTED BY WALSH

Accused Attorney, After Long Delay, Appears at Trial; Acts as Own Lawyer

Harry E. Levenson, little, dark-haired attorney, sat alone, deserted figure in a busy courtroom today.

Co-defendant with William J. "Big Bill" Corcoran in the alleged blackmail case, he suddenly assumed a role of mystery. He sat without counsel.

For three days Harry A. Benwell, American reporter, has stood on the witness stand and given evidence against the little lawyer of such a startling nature that mysterious conferences have developed in the courthouse.

They ended with Levenson vanishing late yesterday to reappear late today. In the interim his lawyers, Fred J. Daggett and William J. Patron, withdrew from the case.

Today Joseph P. Walsh, Corcoran's lawyer, who had acted also for Levenson, deserted the man with the pale face and coal black hair.

ENTER LEVENSON

The trial of Levenson and Corcoran limped to a late and halting start today. Noon passed with the room jammed with spectators, the air with mystery.

Suddenly there was a stir at the door. Special Assistant Attorney General Albert Hurwitz entered with Levenson. His motion Levenson to a chair generally occupied by a court officer, close to the entrance. Levenson sank into it, avoiding a semi-amused look Corcoran, in the customary "defendant's row," shot his way.

The little attorney seemed to be perspiring. He clenched and unclenched hands. His feet moved nervously. Once he had sat cool and collected, just behind the defendant's rail.

A conference occurred at the bench where sits Judge McLaughlin. The conference was by the court, Special Prosecutor Arthur D. Hill and Attorneys Hurwitz and Walsh. The lone lawyer left out of the imposing battery of counsel which featured the first interrupted trial.

HIS OWN LAWYER

It ended. Attorney Hurwitz went to Levenson and whispered. Levenson arose and stepped behind the railing and sank into a chair a few feet from Corcoran.

The trial was resumed with Reporter Benwell on the witness stand for perfunctory redirect examination by Prosecutor Hill. Suddenly Judge McLaughlin addressed Levenson:

"Are you here without counsel?" he asked.

"I represent myself," replied the little lawyer.

CURLEY PLEADS AGAIN TO ABOLISH TAX LIMIT

Mayor Curley today appeared at the State House on what he termed the "annual pilgrimage of the Mayor of Boston." He spoke before the Committee on Municipal Finance in behalf of the bill to abolish the tax limit of the city. He said the time had arrived to put Boston on the same footing as other cities in the Commonwealth. He referred to the street building and school building and school building programs of the city, paid out of the tax levy, and declared that Boston has not increased its bonded indebtedness in seven years.

Giants Still Live on Earth

Plenty of Work for Jack the Giant Killer, and He Can Do Real, Not Imaginary Giant Killing

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

The giants of today haven't long beards with hairs as thick as iron bars, and they do not say, "Fe, Fo, Fi, Fum."

But they are giants none the less, even though some of them be small and baldheaded, and, instead of saying, "Fe, Fo, Fi, Fum," hire lawyers to go into court for them and say, "Non vult contendere." There are big giants on the earth now, much more expensive to the people at large than the biggest imaginary giants would have been, had they really existed and been able to eat a thousand oxen in a day.

We have real giants that put a tax on every ox that the people eat, a tax on every chicken, barrel of flour, ton of coal, pound of sugar, on every steel rail, every gallon of oil.

These giants that tax are more powerful, far bigger "eaters" than were the imaginary giants of childhood.

There is lots of work for Jack the Giant Killer in real life to do in the United States now.

Unfortunately, the genuine giant killing Jacks are rare. The modern giant recognizes Jack the Giant Killer when he sees him—and he usually hires him or controls him in some way; and soon Jack the Giant Killer becomes Jack the Giant Admirer or Jack the Giant Representative in the Legislature.

Giants still live, and big financial, industrial giants are not the only ones among us. There are others more harmful to the human race than the biggest giant of monopolistic extortion.

The real giants, those that die slowly, that, in fact, never have been killed, are the giants that live in the world of thought.

They are the giants that sit on the shoulders of the human race keeping men down.

One of these great giants is named Drunkenness. He is stubborn and hard to fight.

Another big giant in the world of thought, the giant that sits in the high places and has his feet on the homes of man, is the giant of Superstition, multiplying hatreds, brutalities, and keeping back brotherhood among men.

Another great giant, the worst of all, is the giant of Ignorance, who has Poverty, Vice and Malice for members of his family.

This old giant Ignorance is powerful beyond the giant of any fairy story, and slow to die.

But, fortunately, big and powerful as they are, all are smaller than they have been in the past.

The public schools and the millions of little Giant Killers sent out from them are gradually pulling down the strength of old Giant Ignorance.

The newspapers, the publishers of books, keep old Giant Superstition worried. His hold grows feebler upon the brains of men, and those that make a livelihood through Giant Superstition are worried with cause, and do not like newspapers that tell the truth or books that give facts.

As knowledge combats superstition, prosperity combats drink.

The giants are still here, the big giants that have had their feet on the heads and homes of men through the ages. The only giants that ever lived we still have with us, big and powerful, but luckily, not as big as they were once.

No Jack the Giant Killer can hope with a blow of his sword to cut off the giant's head all alone.

You cannot wake up any more, find a beanstalk growing outside your window, climb up and terrify the giant tribe. But with your talking and your voting, you can be a useful part of the real giant killer, which is the sum total of human intelligence and conscientious citizenship.

The Habit of Buying Bonds

Don't Lose It. It Means Peace of Mind Later

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

During the war bonds were bought by at least fifteen million Americans who never before bought a bond or made any similar investment.

Patriotism made money savers and bond buyers of millions.

Common sense, preparation for the future should continue these citizens as buyers of bonds and savers of money.

Keep up the habit of buying bonds. Read the advertisements of bond issues that are printed. And if you keep the bonds, looking upon them as insurance for your old age, you will find yourself independent in the end.

You can buy the bonds of this government with your eyes shut, of course. They will always be good, for if they are not good, nothing in the United States will be worth a dollar. But when you buy other kinds of securities, always giving bonds the preference, take the advice of a reputable man that knows. See him, or write him, ask his advice.

Keep away from the fraudulent so-called "stock" offered at a low price with a promise of tremendous profits. The sellers will get your money. Nine hundred and ninety-nine times out of a thousand you won't get it back, and you won't get any profit.

Buy good bonds first, stocks that have for twenty years or more been paying dividends second, and take the advice of an honest banker before you buy unless YOU know all about it.

But do NOT give up the habit of saving and investing.

Remember the story which is taken from an old book of fables. Aesop wrote that fable in Greece more than two thousand years ago. La Fontaine wrote it again in clever French verse in the days of Louis the XIV., and Aesop the Greek got it probably from some fable writer of India.

THE STORY OF THE GRASSHOPPER AND THE ANT

The ant saved and accumulated all Summer. The grasshopper spent the Summer singing. When the cold weather came he went to the ant and said, "Let me have some food."

"What did you do in the Summer time while I was working?" asked the ant.

Replied the grasshopper, "I was singing."

Said the ant, "Oh, you were singing, were you? Very well, dance now," and he closed his door and the poor grasshopper froze.

Observe the difference between the grasshopper and the ant, between the man who saves and the man who does not.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

WHY shouldn't Bill smile at the little blonde across the street when he takes you out for your Sunday walk—even if Bill happens to be your husband of ten years' standing and the father of your four children? If such exuberance is the natural overflow of a nature like Bill's, why shouldn't he do it?

Yes, I'm asking that seriously. It isn't a trivial question. It digs into the very foundations of married life. As you feel about Bill's smile at that blonde, so you will feel about everything else that concerns you and Bill. So, how DO you feel about it?

"It's outrageous!" you say. "It's an insult to me. What right has he to flirt with another woman when I'm with him, or any other time? Even if it isn't downright wrong, it's silly and vulgar—I should think he'd be ashamed of himself. Noticing every pretty girl that comes along—and most of them aren't pretty, at that! Bold, painted things!"

Is that the way you feel? Pretty natural way to feel—but is it a very wise or fair way to feel? Let me tell you about Florrie Walton. Florrie was a notary before she married Ed Walton. As you come to know men fairly well in that job, Florrie didn't have any particular illusions about her Ed. She knew he was one of those cheerful idiots who just naturally romp after everything they meet, like good-natured puppies. But he adored her and she adored him, so she took her chances on the romping.

They have been married eleven years, and they're happier today than on their honeymoon. Ed actually eats out of Florrie's hand. But—if during those eleven years there has been a pretty skirt which Ed didn't see, it was because he had a cinder in his eye. Blonde, brunette or henna, they all look good to Ed. You'd have to set his smile in cement to keep it from straying when a lively girl happens by. To make it stronger, Florrie isn't pretty. Just one of those plain, comfortable women. You'd think she would be furious with Ed, and that her fury would be double-edged, because she herself has failed to make the beauty grade. But not a bit of it.

"It's this way," she says when her lady friends remonstrate. "That flirting is just a natural part of Ed. He was born that way, just as he was born with red hair and a pug nose and a liking for fried onions. He smiles at a pretty girl exactly as he says 'Um!' when he smells fresh doughnuts. There's no harm in it. But if I tried to curb and repress it, there'd mighty soon be harm in it. He'd begin to feel that he was misunderstood, and look around for someone to comfort him. And it would be my own fault. If I'm so evil-minded that I've got to read vice into perfectly natural playfulness, then I deserve to lose him."

But that explanation doesn't satisfy Florrie's friends. They're positive that she is breeding a tragedy for herself. "Some day she'll wake up and find he's been deceiving her! Just see what happened to Clara Smith and Janet Rogers. Believe me, I watch my husband.

Yes, they watch them. And the more they watch the more they distrust. Well, if you bring a dead rat into a house you may expect the air to become polluted. They brought the dead rat of jealousy and evil thought into the house of their marriage, and it is fouling all the place.

Which wifely policy do you prefer?

Need Clothes Badly

Editor Helping Hand:

I have been reading a great deal of the good you are doing for poor people. I wonder if there is any space for another family. My husband has been out of work for nearly a year as a result of poor health. All I get is five dollars a week from the city to live on, and with that I have to try to feed six children, my husband and myself, and buy fuel and food. Anything in clothing will be a God-send to us. The boys are eleven, ten and eight, and the girls are five, two and a half, and three months. I wear size 38.

MRS. C. A.

$15 For Fund

Editor Helping Hand:

I read each evening your column in the American, and believe me, you are doing good work in ministering so many unfortunates who are worthy of assistance. I am enclosing my second contribution to the fund, and trust it will encourage one or more to continue the struggle.

NUFF CED.

Many thanks for all you are doing. The fifteen dollars you enclosed has been added to the Helping Hand Fund. It is a great comfort to have something for those very needy cases where the delay of a published appeal would be a hardship.

Family of Six In Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I am writing to ask if someone has some children's clothing that they could give me. I have six in the family, four boys and two girls. The boys are twelve, eleven, six and two, and the girls are nine and seven. Their father has been sick and unable to work since early in the fall, and I have mended and patched until there is nothing left. I cannot buy clothes on the small sum of ten dollars a week that the city gives me. The oldest girl is a cripple, so I am unable to work myself. I would like to get some night work, as it would help me out for a while. If anyone has a warm dress also forty or forty two, I would be glad to get it. M. E. F.

Will Contribute Weekly

Editor Helping Hand:

Enclosed please find two dollars which please give to Mrs. B. B. 2. Kindly send along her address and I will contribute weekly to make her burden more pleasant.

J. J. M.

You are very kind. The two dollars is being forwarded her, and you have been sent her address.

For Expectant Mother

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a few things that would be of use to an expectant mother or one with a very young baby. They are: two muslin slips, two flannel nighties, two all wool gertrudes, three flannel sacks, one wool jacket, two shirts, two bands, two straight bands, three pairs of wool stockings. I will be glad to mail these to anyone you consider worthy.

MRS. H. H. W.

Thank you! You have been sent the address of Mrs. J. T.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON DECEPTIONS THAT ARE HARMLESS

By Dr. Frank Crane

THE magician is not necessarily a faker.

Deception is harmful only when it claims not to be deception. One who deceives you but tells you beforehand that he is going to deceive you is really doing you a service and increasing your knowledge of the truth.

The world has always been preyed upon by charlatans and liars. But the damage these gentry have done has been in proportion to the degree to which they have convinced the public that they were not deceiving at all.

The magician who performs his tricks because his hand is quicker than your eye, because he knows forces and laws that have escaped your attention, because he can demonstrate how imperfect are your powers of observation, really does more toward exposing the fakers than anyone else.

One of the greatest living magicians is Houdini. He once remarked that he had never seen a spiritualistic medium do anything by his alleged occult powers that he as a magician could not do by mere skill.

Whoever helps to loosen the hold of superstition upon the minds of the people is a public benefactor.

The belief in luck, charms, occult powers and spirit accomplishments has done incredibable harm. It has influenced minds and spread many septic fears.

To see a skilled magician do his wonderful performances and to know that they are all carried on by plain cunning and sleight-of-hand is the best antidote for the depression one receives from sitting in Queen Alice's parlor and watching the ectoplasm.

Harry Houdini might be called a trickster. In fact he calls himself that. But this simply means that he is honest. He is really a man of superior attainments. He has one of the largest libraries extant dealing with subjects of human deception. He has written many books. He is extraordinarily gifted physically. His muscular power and nerve control are amazing.

But all this natural equipment, knowledge, skill and experience he does not use to bolster up any false claims to supernatural power. He is entirely justified in using his abilities for the entertainment of the public and in making the public pay for it. But the public knows exactly what it is getting.

But in addition to this it seems to me that he and other legitimate magicians are doing a real service to the community in demonstrating the failure of the argument that simply because you do not see why a thing takes place therefore it must take place because of some ghostly power.

The very foundation of sound thinking is to believe that there is a natural cause for every result. The magician helps establish this foundation because he convinces us that the cause is there even when we cannot see it.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON ABUSE OF LANGUAGE

By Garrett P. Serviss

IT is a duty that everybody owes to help all he can to keep his mother tongue pure and undefiled. But it seems to be a duty very little regarded. Between carelessness, ignorance and the itch for innovation and novelty, the English language in common use has became rather badly smirched of late, and the evil shows a menacing rate of increase.

This is seen, among other things, in the rapid spreading of the use of objectionable words, either new words or old ones employed with a modernized sense. Let it be understood that I am not objecting to newness in itself, as it is the inevitable attendant of all progress. On the other hand, however, newness should never be worshipped for itself alone. It is only an accidental quality, and possesses no inherent or original value.

Sheep Habit

The sheep habit of imitation, fatal to critical and independent judgment, is the chief cause of the rapid spread of innovation without regard to the question whether they are desirable or undesirable, helpful or injurious. To be specific, take a word which is now catching and spreading like an epidemic disease, the word "stress" used as an active, transitive verb, as for instance: "He stressed the study of foreign languages," instead of "urged," "advised," "advocated," "recommended," "contended for," or any phrase by means of which the same idea could be as well, or better, conveyed.

"Stressed" has a disagreeable sound and an ugly look. It seems to me that no one having a keen sense of euphony, as well as of the essential meanings of words, could ever employ it in that way. Study a few examples:

I take up the first newspaper at hand and find, in a report of a meeting where the quarrel of the "fundamentalists" and the "modernists" was the subject of discussion, the statement that a speaker "stressed the need of a revival in the church." Elsewhere I read that another speaker "stressed a warning."

This misusage of a word excellent in its true place and function, is to be seen everywhere—in new books, in magazines, in reviews, in Congress speeches that were born in print without vocal delivery, in scientific reports, etc. The rush to grab the solecism suggests a bargain counter, or the eagerness of all the me-toos to don the latest color.

As to any necessity for such abuse of an old word that has long served well in its proper sense, there is none. Nevertheless, if it were a very pleasing word in sound and looks, and if it had a suitable connotation, it might be welcomed in its novel dress, because no language can be too rich in synonyms. But "stress" does not possess these qualifications. Its sound is not particularly attractive, while its root meaning implies mechanical force.

Astonishing

That, by the way, may account for what I believe to be a fact, viz.: that it was in a scientific publication that the verb "to stress," in its present objectionable guise, was first noticed like a spark setting fire in a dry stubble-field. To a mind too much absorbed by scientific technicality a verb with a strong mechanical connotation might easily seem to possess the genius ultra of expressional power. But it is decidedly a matter for astonishment when writers who take pride in measuring themselves by literary standards consent to be led astray by so distressful a usage.

However, the very popularity of "to stress" may, by excess, put an end to its use. It is not beautiful enough to serve as its own excuse for being; and we hope to see this powerful word in good time, retire into its substantive form, where alone its sinewy limbs and rugged aspect are calculated to awaken respect and admiration, and where it is but seldom seen or heard by the untechnical multitude.

ATTORNEY WALSH WITHDRAWS AS COUNSEL FOR LEVENSON

ACCUSED LAWYER TO CONDUCT HIS OWN CASE IN COURT

"Do you wish to cross-examine the witness?" asked the jurist.

"No," replied Levenson nervously.

WALSH WINS

A legal clash then developed over whether or not Attorney Walsh could question Benwell, that virtually testimony being directed at Levenson only and Walsh no longer acting for Levenson.

The lawyer won the right to ask Benwell concerning a visit to Attorney General J. Weston Allen and his assistant Albert Hurwitz concerning what he had discovered of the alleged blackmail ring.

Benwell testified that Allen told him if he did not give his information concerning the alleged ring and their machinations he would summons him before a grand jury.

Walsh won his point and then brought out from Benwell that on a visit to Levenson's house the lawyer was in a "sleeping fog" and that his physical condition was not his best. Levenson is undecided to be decidedly far from well.

STILL BUZZING

The bombshell sprung while Reporter Benwell testified, when a register of the Copley Square Hotel was introduced with the names of J. Weston Allen and Louise Biddle, a stenographer, guests in adjoining rooms, was hailed as a resumption of the trial was awaited.

Names of Allen and the woman appeared on the little black transient register reading: "Room 747—J. Weston Allen and Louise Biddle, Room 28, State House, Boston, Mass." J. Weston Allen was formerly attorney-general.

COURT SUSPENDED AS DOG VISITS JUDGE

Business was suspended in the East Cambridge court today during the visit of a distinguished guest, traveling incognito.

The distinguished guest was a mongrel dog, which strayed into the courtroom with a friendly look in its brown eyes and a merry wag of its scraggy tail for everybody present.

Two lawyers who were arguing the case of Attorney Stephen Brennan of No. 21 Cameron avenue, North Cambridge, charged his landlord, Anthony Mandlewicz, with assault, stepped when the dog snaked between their legs and mounted to the bench and rubbed its muzzle against Judge Stone.

Judge Stone stopped proceedings while the visitor was escorted to the street.

Attorney Brenahan was found not guilty.

The order followed a request of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien and Albert Hurwitz, who has been acting as special assistant attorney-general in the prosecution of William J. Corcoran and Attorney Harry E. Levenson in the alleged blackmail trial.

The papers were ordered impounded with all exhibits in the case until further notice and nobody is to be allowed to see them. Attorney Hurwitz and District Attorney O'Brien made the request of Justice Wait today following a conference in the district attorney's office. Berman sued Coakley for $50,000 charging a shakedown back in 1916 when the Higgins House was doing a prosperous business. The suit was dismissed.

WOMAN HUNTED IN DORCHESTER MURDER

Mrs. Elias Khouri Killed Her Husband, Sweetheart Tells Police

Mrs. Khouri, she asked me if I could get her some poison. 'What for?' I asked her. 'I want to kill Louie,' she replied.

"I was amazed. 'For God's sake, don't do that,' I said.

"Nothing more was said by her until after the shooting. I got in touch with her over the telephone and she told me she had shot him. 'I have killed Louie,' she said. Later I met her personally and she repeated the story to me. 'I don't know why I did it,' she said.

BELIEVED "IDEAL COUPLE."

"This is all I know. I have been terribly worried and I am glad I have relieved my mind."

A warrant charging Mrs. Khouri with murder was issued immediately by Dorchester court. Mrs. Khouri had left the Norfolk street address, but police have found that she has been living in Hudson street, South End, and expect to have her in custody by night.

Mrs. Khouri is twenty-two years old and her husband used to be dancing partners and were well known about Greater Boston. Their wedding was considered an "ideal one match" by friends. Khouri has up a good fruit business at Union avenue and Norfolk street, Dorchester.

by the Tacoma, appealed to the American consul at Vera Cruz for two strong tugs, say the that unless the tugs arrived within two hours it might be too late to pull the warship off the reef.

The cruiser Dubuque Richmond, en route from New Orleans to Panama, has been instructed by radio to go to the assistance of the Tacoma.

Whether there will be any danger to the crew of the Tacoma was not apparent from the messages. The first message read:

"Tacoma aground on Blanquilla reef, Vera Cruz, S. O. S., need help."

"Immediately."

"S.S.S."

The second, addressed to the United States consul at Vera Cruz, read:

"If two strong tugs or steamers come soon we may pull off the reef. If there is two hours delay it will be too late, 6:30 a. m.

Blanquilla Reef is sixteen miles off the entrance of Vera Cruz Harbor. Every effort is bein made by the hydrographic office here to get into communication with the Tacoma.

The Tacoma, a light cruiser of 8,500 tons, left Galveston Sunday for Vera Cruz. Since the outbreak of the Mexican revolt she has been patrolling the gulf coast and frequently come into Galveston. She was commissioned in 1905, and was built at a cost of $1,470,000.

Cruiser Sent to Enforce U. S. Rights

Washington, Jan. 16.—The Navy Department has dispatched the old light cruiser Tacoma from Galveston to Vera Cruz to open general radio communication with that port at once.

Steps are being taken by the government to stop interference with American vessels off Tampico by the blockade set up by the De La Huerta revolutionary group, and also to reopen cable and wireless communication with Mexico to commercial and other interests in the United States.

De La Huerta, as an individual, is to be informed by the State Department that the United States cannot permit interruption of the legitimate, non-political commerce of its nationals and representations have been made to the Obregon government calling attention to the embarrassment of Americans by the closing of cable service between this country and Vera Cruz.

The communication regarding the Tampico blockade was cabled to Vera Cruz and Consul John Wood was expected to lay it before De La Huerta today.

Administration officials do not believe the Insurrection leaders will carry out the blockade order against American commerce in the face of these representations, which set forth that the United States cannot tolerate interference with American commercial enterprises.

Federals Rout Rebels in First Offensive

Mexico City, Jan. 16 (A.P.)—The first battle of the Federal offensive against the De La Huerta revolutionists on the Vera Cruz front occurred when General Francisco Urbalejo, second in command of the offensive troops, defeated the rebels at Tepexca, twenty miles to the southeast of Puebla, according to a War Department bulletin.

The rebels lost twenty killed and two wounded, according to Urbalejo's report. The Federals lost four killed and five wounded. The rebels fled, the general reported.

Special dispatches from Penjamo, Guanajuato, reiterate that the Jalisco revolutionary army is composed of three divisions, with the one commanded by General Rafael Buelna holding La Piedad De Cabadas, the only one whose whereabouts is definitely known.

The Federal army advancing toward Vera Cruz also defeated an attempt of the revolutionists under General Sanchez to surround it, according to special dispatches. The rebels were forced to retreat.

The Federal army occupied Tehuacan, according to dispatches, the rebels fleeing when the Obregon troops began entering the town.

The cooperatista deputies, who have been supporting the De La Huerta movement, have decided to remain in Mexico City, despite threats of "direct action" made against them by Federation syndicalist workers if they did not abandon the capital and join the revolutionists.

The private funds of De rebel leader, Adolfo De La Huerta, which were held by the monetary commission, have been delivered to Mrs. De La Huerta, who is en route to the United States under a guarantee of protection given by President Obregon.

U. S. Bankers Plan Big Loan to Mexico

Mexico City, Jan. 16 (A.P.)—The United States cruiser Tacoma is proceeding towards Vera Cruz, according to announcement here.

George T. Summerlin, American Charge d'Affaires, requested permission to visit Vera Cruz and Tuxpan, according to a Foreign Office official. Simultaneously it was announced the request was granted and that the Tacoma was proceeding toward Vera Cruz.

Reports are current here that representatives of three banking establishments of the United States are on their way to Mexico City to negotiate a loan of $25,000,000 pesos to the Obregon government. It is understood the plan will be presented to administration officials within a few days by Charge Summerlin.

Confirmation of the report could not be obtained officially. Neither would the administration officials comment on it.

Lowell Man Shoots Self While Combing His Hair

Jan. 16.—Cecil P. Dodge, well-known sportsman and president of the Moody Club, shot himself while combing his hair in one of the most peculiar accidents ever recorded by the police. Dodge, who lives at "The Annex," keeps a 45-calibre revolver which had been "panned," a process which removes the trigger and makes it quicker firing.

The revolver lay on his dresser. His hand, moving the comb, struck his hat. The hat dropped to the dresser, knocked the revolver to the floor and as the weapon fell it, discharged, sending a bullet through Dodge's leg. Physicians said that the wound is not a serious one.

GROUNDING TO COST LEVIATHAN $250,000

New York, Jan. 16.—A quarter million dollars damage was sustained by the Leviathan when she grounded on Ribbin's Reef on her last trans-Atlantic voyage, shipyard men disclosed today. The giant liner not only ripped open 20 of her heavy steel hull plates when she ploughed on the reef but kinked her back amid ships so seriously that much readjustment of her intererior will be necessary.

at Newport. Perhaps she was right. Marlborough didn't turn out any too well, but at least the Duchess saw something of life.

THIS young Hoogstraeten at least exerted himself enough to go out and pick the large ripe peach on the tree of matrimony. He speaks various languages, made a good looking Sheik, a moving picture actor, and is said to have good Jewish blood. That a t least guarantees the antiquity of his line and energy in his blood.

IN ONE city four children have been dangerously bitten by rats; one infant would have died except for quick use of lodine by the mother.

When will a nation, as rich and intelligent as this, make up its mind to put an end to rats, flies, mosquitoes and other disease-breeding vermin, or reduce them to a minimum?

United action by the National Government and the forty-eight States would make rats scarce as wolves, and mosquitoes as scarce as eagles.

We spend a hundred thousand million dollars to mix in a fight in Europe, but we can't spend twenty or fifty millions to get rid of vermin, whose end would mean thousands of lives and hundreds of millions saved every year.

MR. NORMAN H. DAVIS, estimable gentleman, sails for Europe to help settle a discussion about Memel.

What has this nation to do with Memel? What business is it of ours to supply a man to settle a discussion that the League of Nations can't settle for themselves, with all their bragging about the wonderful things that they were to do?

HOW MANY of one hundred and ten million Americans know anything about Memel, a little strip of territory running thirty-five miles along the Baltic Sea? If the League of Nations can't succeed in making a neutral zone of that, as the Versailles treaty intended, why do we get mixed up in it? Haven't we enough business of our own to attend to?

GENERAL DAWES is in Paris, helping other reparations commissioners to eat a very fine dinner with "Bordeaux wine fifty years old." That's nonsense, of course, for Bordeaux wine, even the strongest Lafitte, doesn't keep in good condition for fifty years. It hasn't enough alcoholic strength.

Mr. Dawes has talked some common sense, but sending him there is nonsense. What have we to do with their reparations, with the amount that one of them can take from the other in gold?

ORDER RUDNICK TO PAY EXPERTS' FEES TO WIFE

They Were Married a Year Ago; She Developed Mental Trouble on Honeymoon

Joseph Rudnick, wealthy Boston real estate operator, was ordered today to pay $500 counsel and expert fees to his wife, Mollie Barron Rudnick, who is defending a suit to nullify her marriage.

Mrs. Rudnick is an inmate of the McLean Insane Hospital at Waverley. Her brother, Joseph Barron, Boston clothing manufacturer, is acting as her guardian. Her husband asks the court to nullify the marriage on the grounds that his wife was insane at the time of the marriage.

They were married on January 23, 1923, and started for California on their honeymoon. Rudnick claims his wife became so ill mentally that he had to call physicians in California and cut the wedding trip short. On their return to Boston Rudnick asserts he tried to live with her, but owing to her mental condition her relatives had her committed to McLean Hospital.

Attorneys for the guardian appeared today before Judge Green (sic) in Superior Court on four motions. A motion asking for alimony was taken under advisement. A motion asking for the taking of depositions of California physicians was denied.

A motion that Rudnick be ordered to file answers to interrogatories was granted. Rudnick was ordered to file answer within ten days.

COLD GALE WITH RAIN OR SNOW IS COMING

Disturbance of Increasing Intensity Moving Eastward, Weather Bureau Reports

Cold weather is headed for Boston with maybe rain or snow and a gale.

A blinding snow storm caused one death and three injuries in Chicago today.

Reports from farther West reveal a sudden drop in temperature of 10 degrees, a light snow fall and colder weather forecast.

The Washington Weather Bureau ordered storm warnings from the Virginia Capes to Eastport, Me., today. A disturbance of increasing intensity was moving toward New England from Indiana, the warning said, with a gale and rain or snow in the offing.

An "L" train killed a Chicago resident at Cicero, a suburb. Two men were injured in a train wreck and a forth sustained probably fatal hurts when he was blown off an "L" platform into the path of an oncoming train.

The dense snowfall was the forerunner of wintry blasts from the Northwest, the Chicago Weather Bureau announced.

Temperatures of far below zero were reported today in Northwestern Wisconsin, Minnesota, Western Iowa, Kansas, the Dakotas and Eastern Montana, while a marked rise has been noted in the temperature east of the Mississippi River, which will result in rain and snow in these States.

COUNT SALM'S CAREER IN EUROPE FILLED WITH LOVE AFFAIRS

HE SLAPPED FACE OF PREMIER

Sensational Escapades in Vienna and Berlin Recalled; Hint He's Supporting Bride

New York, Jan. 16.—Count Ludwig Salm Von Hoogstraeten has given the impression that he is supporting his wealthy bride, formerly Miss Millicent Rogers, without the aid of her parents, Colonel and Mrs. Henry Huddleston Rogers.

Answering a questionnaire submitted by newspapers, the Count said:

"Has it ever occurred to the representatives of the press that the husband supports the wife? It is not up to the families."

A report that Mrs. Grace Montgomery Coffin, to whom the Count was said to have been engaged before his marriage to Miss Rogers, January 8, was planning to bring suit against him, was branded as "nonsense."

"She congratulated us and wished us luck," he said.

WHOLE TOWN TALKING

The threatened shake-up in the police department, the Philadelphia war on vice, the forty-two kinds of trouble Congress has in pickle at Washington, the approaching presidential campaign, not one nor all these things have been able to distract New York's attention from the achievement of the Count Ludwig Von Salm Hoogstraeten.

When an Austrian nobleman no longer exactly young can breeze into the American metropolis on five thousand borrowed dollars and marry the heiress to $40,000,000 of Standard Oil money eleven days after meeting the young lady, there is bound to be talk.

And the whole town still is talking about the City Hall marriage of Millicent Rogers, the grand-daughter of the late "H. H."

Here are some of today's discoveries:

The Count's career in Vienna is littered with love adventures.

Berlin tells the same story, only a "little more so."

He once slapped the face of the venerable Count Michael Karolyi, Austrian statesman.

"Ludi," they call him in Vienna, where he is described as "the last word in lovers" and "the Wild Boy of Europe."

COUNT HAD RIVAL

And it also was revealed today that the Count was not the only titled foreigner who was "paying attention" to Millicent Rogers.

Among the "others" is mentioned the Baron Raven von Barnico, whose German home is rich in glory and not exactly poor in gold.

The Baron von Barnico is described as the exact opposite in type of Count Ludwig. He is tall, blond, athletic, not more than twenty-six or twenty-seven, and presents an appearance not unlike that of young Jimmie Thompson, once engaged to Miss Rogers.

A FIGHTING SHEIK

Nor is it in New York alone that society is discussing the fast-working Count Ludwig. "The marriage of Count Von-Salm Hoogstraeten to the Rogers heiress," reports Karl H. Von Wiegand in a copyright cablegram to Universal Service," " is the sensation of Vienna society, which remembers the Count only too well."

"His dashing meteoric career is like a red streak across society annals here. It is littered as much with love adventures with numerous ladies as it is with fights and brawls which made him known as a figure in all the fashionable cafes and hotels in Vienna and Berlin.

"He has still numerous friends and even some admirers, especially among a group of women whose idol he has been for a long time.

"Of handsome appearance, amiable to friends, with the faultless manners of the old aristocratic family, a brilliant tennis player, a fluent conversationalist in seven languages, he was much sought after socially until his irresponsibility, inconstancy, irritability and even pugnaciousness made him feared and

Below are pictures of his bride, formerly Millicent Rogers, heiress to millions, Mrs. Coffin, who was jilted by the Count, and Betty Sherwood, a New York modiste, who knew she knew the Count well and that he told her he hoped to win a lovely maiden with millions. the social bars were erected against him.

IN HOTEL BRAWL

"The most sensational of the escapades of the Count, now recalled, was his encounter with the Hungarian Premier, Count Michael Karolyi, in a Vienna cafe, when he slapped the face of the venerable statesman.

"Count Karolyi has just turned over the Hungarian government to the Communist, Bela Kuhn. Count Von Salm-Hoogstraeten, as a passionate Monarchist, thought it his duty to avenge this political act.

"Afterward, he had other numerous similar encounters with Socialists. The Count never made any secret of his political opinions, even boasting of them, though he was never active politically.

"Among his adventures with women. It is recalled that two of his escapades took place in hotels in Berlin, where he spent considerable time in earlier days.

GIRL WAS HURT

"In the year 1921, he was caught with a married woman in one of Berlin's leading hotels. The discovery was followed by a fight in the hotel bar, after which he was told he would have to leave the hotel unless he behaved.

"In May, 1922, he arrived at another Berlin hotel, with a party of friends.

"In this party were two young New York women. A hilarious wine party followed, which ended in a general fight when one of the male members of the party tried to invade the room of one of the New York girls. She was badly injured and the men were expelled from the hotel, but the affair was kept quiet."

So much for Vienna, Berlin and the way stations on the other side of the blue pond. As for New York and the impression the dashing nobleman of forty has made in his comparatively short time amongst us, Margery Rex, a special writer for Cosmopolitan News Service, whose opportunities for getting the inside story of a love affair in high society are believed to be unexcelled.

"In Europe," says Miss Rex, "the count is called 'Ludi.' He is said to be the last word in lovers.

"From Ludi, a sunflower, they say, is as good as a plantation of orchids from any other. There is just that about him that makes it so. Ludi could say, 'It's a nice day, isn't it?' to a woman, and she would mope around for a week hoping he meant something by it."

Rudolph Valentino had some pleasant things to say about Count von Hoogstraeten when the former returned from Europe. Most of the compliments were anent the count's ability as a motion picture actor. Valentino said he was as astounded as anyone at the news of the count's marriage with Miss Rogers.

"I thought when I sailed to visit my parents at Juan Les Pines, near Nice, December 13, the count was going to marry Grace Montgomery Coffin," the screen sheik said.

"The count and Mrs. Coffin dined with Mrs. Valentino and myself at the Ritz-Carlton a few evenings before I sailed, and the count told us he and Mrs. Coffin were to be married and would pass their honeymoon abroad."

Valentino said it was during this dinner the count first saw Miss Rogers.

"She was sitting at an adjoining table," said the movie star, "and the count asked me if I knew her and expressed a wish to meet her. I see he did."

Valentino Loud in Praise of Count

New York, Jan. 16—The Sheik of Sheiks himself decorated Count Salm van Hoogstraeten with the Sheik Order of Merit.

Rudolph Valentino, returning on the Belgenland, told reporters that Salm was "an honest-to-goodness Count," an excellent movie actor and no fortune hunter.

But it came as a shock to Valentino to learn that his rival as a perfect lover had married Millicent Rogers.

"I wouldn't believe it till I read it in the newspapers at Quarantine," said the Sheik. "Why, just before I went away, on December 13, Mrs. Valentino and I lunched with Count Salm and Mrs. Montgomery at the Ritz, and we understood they were to be married as soon as his brother, Count Otto, whom I also know well, arrived here.

"I certainly am surprised to hear that he is married to Miss Rogers.

"But I recall now he often expressed a desire to meet Miss Rogers," added Valentino.

"Is it true Count Salm was once a dishwasher?"

"A dishwasher? Ridiculous," replied the Sheik. "He was tremendously wealthy, and his family is one of the most aristocratic in Europe. Of course, he was hit by the war, like everybody else.

"But, what of that? And if he did work, what then? I was glad to work as a gardener when I first came to America."

The Rogers family luggage was removed yesterday from the Ritz by a valet. The family is reported to be at Tuxedo.

It was learned that Count Salm and his bride had planned to sail for France on the Paris today, but cancelled their passage on learning that Mrs. Coffin was sailing on the same ship.

Count and Bride Answer a Questionnaire

Count and Countess Ludwig Salm von Hoogenstratoten yesterday filled out a questionaire sent to their suite in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel by news paper men. The questions and answers follow:

Q.—How soon will you leave New York and where will you go? A.—We have no plans.

Q.—Is Mr. Rogers friendly to Count Salm? If not, why? A.—Ask Larkin & Perry, Mr. Rogers' counsel.

Q.—Would the Countess tell us the outcome of her interview with her father's representative last night? A.—Did not see representative last night.

Q.—What is Mrs. Coffin's attitude toward the marriage? Has she brought suit, as reported? A.—Congratulated us and wished us luck. The report about the suit is nonsense.

Q. Are you friendly, both of you, with Mr. Thompson? A. Never see Mr. Thompson.

Q. Has Mr. Rogers refused all financial aid to the Countess, and has she been excluded from his will? A. Haven't asked financial aid and know nothing about the will. As is usually the case, has it ever occurred to the representatives of the press that the husband supports the wife? It is not up to the families.

Q. What are your plans for the immediate future? A. Have no plans but to avoid newspaper men as much as possible.

SENATORS 'DECEIVED' BY FALL

Senator Will Leave It to Former Secretary to Do the Explaining

Washington, Jan. 16.—Former Secretary of the Interior Albert T. Fall was charged today by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, with having misled the Senate public lands committee when it was inquiring in the Teapot Dome investigation into the source from which he obtained funds for the enlargement and restocking of his New Mexico ranch.

Albert B. Fall.

The charge was made by the Montana Senator upon his return to Washington from Florida, where he examined Edward B. McLean, the Washington newspaper publisher, with regard to the $100,000 loan which Mr. Fall said he had obtained from him for the ranch improvements.

Senator Walsh indicated he would not insist upon the further appearance of Mr. Fall before the committee to give an additional explanation. He said he was content to let Mr. Fall determine for himself whether he would voluntarily appear.

"The records of the committee show," said Senator Walsh, "that Mr. Fall misled the committee."

In a statement to the committee on December 27, Mr. Fall said he obtained $100,000 from Mr. McLean when he was contemplating a purchase of a ranch in New Mexico.

Mr. McLean testified at Palm Beach that he had given Mr. Fall the $100,000 in the form of several checks, which later were returned to him unc ashed. This testimony, Mr. Fall in a letter to Senator Walsh characterized as accurate.

Senator Walsh acked that the committee meet tomorrow to receive his report of the investigation in Florida.

Police are now searching for a Gloucester man implicated with Sampson.

PREVENT 21,000 ACCIDENTS IS NEW PLAN

Nation-Wide Movement Taken to Reduce Mishaps in All Industries

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.)—A nation-wide plan to reduce accidents to workers was announced by the National Industrial Conference Board today, which has been designated "Industrial Safety Day" by Governor Smith.

The new plan for accident prevention has been sent to the leading manufacturers throughout the country, it was announced, and is based on a series of thirty-eight safety codes which the National Industrial Conference Board hopes to put into uniform use in every State.

The plan was worked out in conjunction with the American Engineering Standards Committee, the New York State Department of Labor and other organizations. By its adoption the safety agencies hope to bring about decreases in the loss of lives by accidents, estimated at 21,000 annually. The total lost through accidents to workers is given as more than $1,000,000,000 a year.

London, Jan. 16—There was only one railway accident in England involving loss of life during 1923, according to the Railway Gazette. This was at Diggle in July, when two passengers were killed.

Baffles Doctors

LILLIAN DIXON.

Weymouth girl who has been in a state of coma forty-two days as the result of auto injuries. She appears to be thriving in health despite her prolonged sleep. She is seven years old.

CHILD IN COMA; PUZZLE TO DOCTORS

Girl Hit by Auto, Unconscious Forty-two Days, Is Thriving

Forty-two days after being struck and thrown by a touring car, a little girl of seven remains unconscious, in one of the private rooms of the Weymouth Hospital. Her case has baffled the attending physicians and amazed the eminent specialists brought down from Boston.

"Seven years old! Forty-two days unconscious! Physically thriving! They shake their heads.

The child is Lillian Dixon, youngest of the seven children of Edward Dixon, a Weymouth farmer. She is as pretty as one of the big dolls you see in department store windows a week or two before Christmas.

UNAWARE OF PARTY.

On December 5, Lillian was on her way to the home of a neighbor, on Essex street in East Weymouth, carrying a sort of framed tray with three bottles of milk, when she was hit by a motor car driven by Moran Ward, 16, a High School student.

The girl was thrown violently against a pole at the side of the road, tumbled forward and was struck by one of the rear wheels of the car. Young Ward, it was said, had turned in to avoid striking another car.

Last Sunday was Lillian's seventh birthday. She had a birthday party without knowing anything about it. Neighbors, friends of the family from all parts of Weymouth, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon and the six other children all came to see her. It was just like Christmas. Nearly everybody brought a birthday present, just as they had done on Christmas day. Among the callers was Moran Ward.

FEAR PARALYSIS.

Some of the older folk who attended the birthday party believe the girl is paralyzed. They think one of her arms is contracted, or, as one woman describes it, "shrivelling." One side of her face twitches, too, they say.

Little Lillian doesn't know a thing about the Christmas celebration, her seventh birthday, or the presents.

All but one of the gifts have been put away for her by the good nurses. An exception was made in favor of the cutest doll imaginable, a "baby" doll dressed in long clothes and a bonnet and supplied with a bottle of imitation milk.

This, the nurses say, is Lillian's "baby." It hasn't got a name, poor thing, because Mamma hasn't been conscious long enough to 'tend to the christening.

FELLOW-WORKER HELD FOR ATTACK

Whatever remained of mystery in the midnight attack upon Coast Guard William B. Cleverly of Allerton Station by two men who robbed him of $160 has been cleared up. Chief of Police Frank Reynolds and Inspector Jacobs of Hull declared by the arrest of Daniel Quinn Roberts, 21 of Black Hall, Conn.

Young Roberts, himself a coast guard, declares that at the time of the assault and robbery, he was asleep in the Coast Guard dormitory. The police hold him as a "suspicious person."

The first man arrested, Reginald Armstrong Poole, twenty-six, husband of a Hull girl, was charged with assault and robbery in Hingham Court, and held for Plymouth Grand Jury by Judge Kelly in $5,000 bonds.

CUCUMBER KING LOSES WIFE IN DIVORCE

Adam Foster Says He Gave Her $40,350 and Has Only $65,000 Left

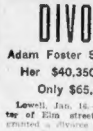
Lowell, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Ellen Foster of Elm street, Woburn, was granted a divorce from Adam Foster, the "Cucumber King," by Judge John C. Leggett in the Lowell Probate Court. She was given the custody of a minor son. No alimony was granted.



Adam Foster.

Mrs. Foster began her suit last June, charging non-support and cruelty. She said that her husband, formerly a street car conductor who raised cucumbers on the side and sold them at the market, grew rich and "made money his God."

Once, in a fit of anger, she said, he threw a chair at her and told her he was sorry he couldn't lift the stove and throw it at her.

Foster said he gave his wife at intervals sums of money which totaled $40,350 and that he has but $65,000 left.

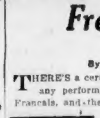
Society Buds to Appear in Harvard's French Plays, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

THERE'S a certain coterie which seldom misses any performance given by Harvard's Cercle Francais, and the usual fashionable gathering is assured for the two presentations which this band of thespians are putting on at the Copley Theatre this afternoon.



Ethel Thayer

Miss Ethel Thayer, better known to her friends as Polly, is to have one of the feminine roles in "La Joie Fait Peur." Miss Helen Grew and Miss Rosamond Thomas are others taking part in this play, while popular "Ros" Adie is lending her histrionic talent to "Le Baiser," the second comedy on this afternoon's bill.

MRS. CAMERON WINSLOW of Bay State road and her trio of daughters made an unusually attractive picture as they received their guests at the ball given by Mr. and Mrs. Winslow at the Somerset the other evening.

Mrs. Winslow was a stately looking figure in lavender. Next to her stood her youngest daughter, Miss Emilie—this affair marking her formal presentation. She wore the demurest of white satin frocks fashioned in the mode of another day. The bodice was rather tight, the skirt very long and full and ribbons of white fell from the shoulders. A cluster of gardenias were fastened in the wearer's titian-colored hair.

A very colorful figure was Theodora Winslow who stood next in line. Her gown, also done in quaint old-fashioned style, was a strikingly unusual and attractive affair of cerise and white. The bodice was of cerise chiffon velvet, while flower-like designs of the same material traced their way around the full skirt of white net. An old-fashioned bouquet of red flowers completed the costume. Theodora Winslow much resembles her sister, Emilie, both of them having the same titian hair and both slim and of medium height.

Miss Natalie Winslow, who stood last in line, is distinctly of the blonde type. Her frock of turquoise blue velvet was trimmed with draperies of silver lace.

SPEAKING of the Winslow ball, one of the most "cut-ie" on girls was slender Helen Bayley, who is a blonde of the willowy type. She wore a dancing frock of jade green velvet, the back of it fashioned of looped tiers of silver cloth.

Elizabeth Thorndike

Bobbed-haired Miss Rebecca Williams, one of the season's "peppiest" buds, wore an originally designed frock of the old-fashioned mode, made of alternating ruffles of old blue and gold rose.

It was, altogether, quite an evening for the frocks of grandmother's day. Miss Sally Cabot was another choosing this mode, here a delightful affair of pale blue and white patterned taffeta with bertha of white lace.

Also recalling the fashion of another generation was Miss Barbara Cuba, wearing a frock of wine-colored taffeta. Miss Forbes, by the way, seems to follow this mode almost entirely.

Julie Miss Betty Thorndike, on the other hand, wore a clinging gown of black velvet, bespeaking the latest word of Dame Fashion. Not that one could see much of the gown, as a gorgeous Spanish shawl of white and scarlet covered most of it.

Society Notes

DR. AND MRS. J. LEWIS BREMER are giving a dance at their Beacon street home tonight for the Misses Ruth Bremer and Martha Bigelow, both prominent buds of '23-24. Miss Bigelow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Bigelow, is a cousin of Mrs. Bremer's, and Miss Ruth Bremer, daughter of the S. Parker Bremers, is a niece of Dr. Bremer.

Mrs. Sydney J. Colford, Jr., of New York entertained at luncheon the other day at the Ambassador. Mrs. Colford is a frequent visitor to Boston as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Hollis Hunnewell.

Practically the entire Boston colony at Palm Beach will participate in the opening of the Everglades Club tomorrow evening. A special dinner and later a dance will be held to mark the occasion.

A large contingent is coming on to Boston from Gotham for the wedding of Miss Ellen Greenough of Boston and Hardwick Stires of New York, which will be solemnized on Saturday at Trinity Church.

Male Acquaintance Benefits Under $5,000,000 Will of Philadelphia Woman

Philadelphia, Jan. 16.—A will disposing of an estate estimated at $5,000,000 has been left by Mrs. George B. Wood of this city, who died December 11.

O. Bearing Wilson, a son, said that "Mr. Hoagland was a very good friend of my mother. I cannot tell his address in New York. He spends much of his time in Europe, and while in this country is up in the White Mountains, and down in Europe as often as he is in New York."

Mrs. Wilson, who was about seventy-two years old, was a collector of prize orchids.

T. D. WHITNEY COMPANY
Estab. 1796—The Oldest Linen Specialty House in America

Real Cluny
at the price of imitation

Lace-trimmed luncheon sets, scarfs and buffet sets at surprising prices—every thread is pure linen; every piece beautifully made and finished. A particularly fortunate foreign purchase makes it possible to announce these unusual values.

Either round or oval doilies may be used for luncheon sets. The 28-inch round centerpiece is only $3.00; the 8-inch doilies are 25c each. There are also 12-inch and 6-inch doilies.

The ovals range (in five sizes) from $2.50 (18x27) to 50c (6x12). There are four different sizes in scarfs and everything matches. The design is exceptionally attractive.

One oval and two round doilies make the very newest approved combination for the buffet. Using the largest oval ($2.50) and two 12-inch round doilies, the whole buffet set would be only a little over $3.00!

This is certainly an interesting opportunity to make a dining-room attractive at small cost. Remember that these all go on sale the first thing Thursday morning.

STORM-BATTERED HUB LINER DOCKS AFTER TERRIBLE PASSAGE

60 FT. TIDAL WAVE HIT ANSONIA

110-Mile Hurricane Makes the Trans-Atlantic Trip Night-mare for Passengers

The storm-battered, overdue Cunard liner Ansonia docked at her berth in East Boston at 9 a. m. today after one of the most terrible Winter passages ever made by any of her officers or crew. The liner brought seventy cabin passengers and fifty-one steerage passengers, most of whom ate their first meal of the voyage while the ship was at anchor in the still waters of the quarantine basin.

From the hour the Ansonia left Queenstown on January 15 until she nosed into quarantine during the night she was battered by a succession of gales and hurricanes. One of the big winds, on January 8, when the liner was two days out from Queenstown, blew at the almost unheard-of velocity of 110 miles per hour.

During this storm a huge sea broke over the vessel, smashing steel bulwarks on the promenade deck, sixty feet above the water line, as if they had been made of cardboard, wrenching lifeboats from their chocks and doing other damage.

MEET 110-MILE GALE

It was blowing so hard when the Ansonia arrived off Cork harbor that several New York bound liners omitted their call at Queenstown, but Captain F. G. Brown of the liner slouged his way into the harbor, picked up a handful of passengers, all that could evade the immigration quota, and put to sea again on the 6th.

Two days later came the worst hurricane that any man on board had ever experienced. According to Captain Brown the wind velocity was 110 miles per hour. Seas smashed against the high sides of the big liner, throwing water clear over the smoke stacks. Heavier seas broke over the bows onto the forward main deck. Finally a tidal wave at least sixty feet high rolled over the ship, which staggered and fell off under the impact.

PASSENGERS ARE INJURED.

This seas did considerable damage, and several passengers were hurled about in their state rooms and the cabins. Several were slightly injured, Miss Jennie McCormack, who received two black eyes and other bruises suffering the severest injuries.

Sir Martin Abrahamsen, K. B. E., a distinguished British electrical engineer who came to America on business, was a passenger.

Other passengers were Rev. Thomas Barry, Rev. Michael Romayne and Rev. Timothy Carney, Roman Catholic priests from Australia. They have been in Rome on a pilgrimage and in England and Ireland on a visit.

CUNARDER BATTERED BY GALE

LINER ANSONIA'S SEA-DAMAGED HURRICANE DECK

Photo shows how giant 60-foot wave crashed over the big Cunarder while on voyage to Boston. The mountainous wave smashed lifeboats on the hurricane deck and caused other damage. The trip was a continuous battle against gales, the wind at times reaching 110 miles an hour. Inset, Sir Martin Abrahamsen, noted British engineer, a passenger on the boat.

DEDHAM LAWYER DIES IN HIS SLEEP

When a maid in the home of Miss Mary de F. Denny on High street, Dedham, went to the chamber of Clarence H. Denny, aged eighty, to serve him his coffee, she discovered that Mr. Denny was dead.

Mr. Denny was a retired lawyer, and, for the last ten years or so, he had been a private trustee. He maintained an office at No. 23 Central street, Boston.

R. I. POPULATION SET AT 626,672

Providence, Jan. 16.—The population of Rhode Island is 626,672, according to the report of George H. Wells, superintendent of the census, presented to the General Assembly. Washington County and the towns of Cumberland and Lincoln show decreases on the basis of the United States census of 1910.

GOULD ESTATE SHARES ARE ALLOTTED

Each Child, Including Those by Second Marriage, to Receive One-Tenth Share

New York, Jan. 16.—Supreme Court Justice Vernon M. Davis ordered payments of $662,871 from the estate of Jay Gould to each of the seven children of George J. Gould by his first marriage, or their trustees, and the settling aside of equal sums for the three children of Mr. Gould's second marriage until their eligibility was established.

The seven who receive the shares immediately are: George J. Gould, Jr.; Kingdon Gould, Marjorie J.

Kingdon Gould.

Mrs. Sinclair Gould.

Duzel, guardian of Gloria Gould Ludop (a minor); Commercial Trust Company of New Jersey and Schuyler Nelson Rice, as trustees for Jay Gould (son of the late George J. Gould) to the same corporation and individual as trustees for Edith Kingdon Gould Wainwright, and to the Equitable Trust Company as trustee for Lady Decies, formerly Vivien Gould.

These disbursements were made in accordance with the recent decision of Justice Davis that each of the late George J. Gould's children by his first marriage was entitled to a tenth of the trust established for their father by Jay Gould, their grandfather, and that tithe be reserved for the children of the second marriage until their eligibility was established.

ENDS HER LIFE WHEN BARRED BY 7 GIRLS

Brooklyn Mother Turns on the Gas After Landlady Refuses to Let Basement

New York, Jan. 16.—The last scene of another tragedy of the unwanted was laid in the dark, dank rooms of a basement at No. 149 Christopher street, Brooklyn.

The tragedy began a year ago, when John Schneider, prosperous father of seven of the prettiest girls in Brooklyn, died.

Mrs. Rebecca Schneider, her last dollar gone, was left with her seven girls.

Gertrude, twenty-one, bravely got a job in a Manhattan store. They moved to the Christopher street basement to begin life on a lower scale.

But the damp rooms sapped the strength of Mrs. Schneider.

Finally she found a cheery apartment in Watkins street, Brooklyn.

Then Monday the woman who owned the new home called.

"I didn't know you were a widow and had all those children," she told Mrs. Schneider. "I'm afraid I don't want you; here's your deposit."

Mrs. Schneider bade her visitor goodby, walked into her bedroom, placed the rubber gas tube in her mouth and opened the jet.

Today the six younger girls were crying at the Pride of Judea Orphans' Home.

Mrs. Rebecca Schneider.

AUNT BLOCKS ADOPTION OF CHILDREN

Provides Home for Three Boys Whom Father Planned to Give Away to Strangers

Charlie and George now have a good home. So will their baby brother Joseph.

From now until they have become young men they will have no further worries, for the care and money of two loving aunts and a fond grandfather will be devoted to the three motherless tots.

Mrs. F. F. Mulcahy

George and Charles are the little boys of No. 36 Summit street Rockland, whose father, Charles Agrew Sr., offered for adoption through the American.

Mr. Agrew told the American he found it too hard to care for them as they should be cared for. Their mother died three years ago when the baby brother Joseph was born. For a time the two lived with their aunt, Mrs. F. F. Mulcahy, No. 14 Sunnyside street, Jamaica Plain, and their grandfather, James A'Hearn of the same address.

Then their father remarried. He took the children back to his home. A child was born of the second marriage.

Agrew told the American he found it hard to make both ends meet, and that he wanted the children to have a better home than he could provide. When Mrs. Mulcahy read the story in the American she immediately went to Rockland and announced she had the proper home for the children, and that she did not want to see them go to a strange home. So she has brought them back to her home to Jamaica Plain.

"I shall take immediate steps to legally adopt them and stop any further chance of their getting into the hands of strangers," she announced.

HAPPY WITH AUNT.

The children were happy to go with their aunt and her sister, Mrs. James A. Carney, also of Jamaica Plain. Mrs. Carney is going to adopt one of the boys; Mrs. Mulcahy will adopt another and the grandfather will adopt the third. But all three will live at the Mulcahy home.

"Do you want to go with your aunt?" the reporter asked the boys.

"They will never be offered to strangers again," said Mrs. Mulcahy.

DR. LUTHER E. HOLT IS DEAD IN PEKIN

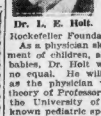
Pekin, Jan. 15.—Dr. Luther Emmett Holt, a professor in the Rockefeller Institute, and one of the leading child specialists of the world, is dead here of heart disease.

Dr. Holt came to Pekin, with Mrs. Holt, several months ago, and gave a series of lectures at Union Medical College, supported by the Rockefeller Foundation.



Dr. L. E. Holt.

As a physician skilled in the treatment of children, and a particularly babies, Dr. Holt was said to have no equal. He will be remembered as the physician who opposed the theory of Professor Karl Pearson of the University of London, well-known pediatric specialist, when the latter said that the first born baby is usually inferior physically, mentally and morally.

MRS. DAVIES SEEKS DIVORCE RETRIAL

Charges of impropriety run riot in the case of Davies vs. Davies.

Mrs. Ruby Gibson Davies, wife of Laverne A. Davies, writer and former captain in the U. S. Marine Corps, is seeking retrial of her divorce suit.

In 1923 Davies was awarded a verdict of $150,000 damages against Alfred C. Harrison, Philadelphia society leader and clubman, but this decision was recalled.

PATROLMAN KILLS BURGLAR IN CHASE

New York, Jan. 16.—An uniformed man was shot and killed, and two others were captured by police after a chase today following an attempted burglary in an apartment house in the Bronx. ## PROF. LIPKA OF TECH DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Flags at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology were at half-staff for Professor Joseph Lipka of the department of mathematics, who died in the Homeopathic Hospital of pneumonia, following an operation. Professor Lipka was born in 1883, in Russia. He was graduated from Columbia University in 1905.

SINCLAIR PREDICTS BIG OIL SHORTAGE

New York, Jan. 16.—Harry F. Sinclair, oil operator, expects a serious oil shortage soon, he said today as he sailed on the Paris for a six weeks' trip abroad.

"Production is not keeping pace with consumption in this country," he said. "If consumption abroad is anything like I think it is—and I intend to see for myself—I suspect we will go in for a serious oil shortage."

DEMOCRATS TO BE FETED IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 16—Local Democratic leaders, hotel men and business men, jubilant over the selection of New York as the home of the Democratic National Convention predicted today the population of this city would temporarily jump a v[illegible] in June, the convention month.

[illegible] of visitors who will be drawn here by the convention, it was stated, would find the city not only the most cosmopolitan and most varied in entertainment in the country, but also the most hospitable and the least desirous of mulcting its guests. It will be the first national political convention held in New York in 56 years.

Within a few hours after New York's selection became known from Washington discussion of plans to house and entertain the visitors was set the stage for the expected political battle began.

The first political move was the leasing of a floor at the Hotel Vanderbilt as the headquarters of the William G. McAdoo campaign by David Hunter Miller, New York State campaign manager of Mr. McAdoo.

Hotel men made it clear that rates of the city's 150 modern hostelries, which aggregate approximately 50,000 rooms, would not be raised, while business and theatrical men echoed the intention not to take advantage of the convention influx to boost prices.

Denied Alimony

MRS. WILLIAM F. HOPPE

The application of Mrs. William F. Hoppe for alimony and counsel fees pending trial of the suit for absolute divorce brought by her husband, world's champion billiard player, was denied by New York Supreme Court Justice Guy insofar as the alimony was concerned.

The suit was begun by Hoppe two weeks after his wife, already separated from him, went to court to get custody of their son.

HEALTH VIEWS OF AMERICAN AROUSE SIRE

Christian Scientist Takes Exception to Opinions in Editorial

Clifford P. Smith of the committee of publication of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, takes exception to a recent editorial in the columns of this paper, advocating the establishment of a National Department of Health and, indirectly, assailing those who hold views to the contrary, by whom, Mr. Smith appears to have assumed, are meant Christian Scientists. The letter follows:

To the Editor of the Boston American:

The recent editorial in which a writer for the Boston American and other newspapers advocated a National Department of Health and denounced some of the citizens who oppose that project, furnished an apt illustration of the fact that a weak position can be neither concealed nor supported by violent words. In fact, the editorial in question, besides disclosing a marked lack of pertinent information, was not even self-consistent.

COMPULSORY MEDICATION.

The writer of the editorial explicitly said, "The public would not for a moment tolerate a law telling the people to adopt and submit themselves to treatment by any medical school, allopathic or otherwise." In spite of this explicit statement, most of the editorial was given to an insistence upon compulsory medication. Again, the writer in question said, "A national bureau of health would be chiefly advisory, answering questions, spreading information, preventing the spread of contagious diseases." Yet the purposes thus stated are those of the existing United States Public Health Service. That is the business of an existing bureau, as shown by its annual reports and by title LVIII. of the United States Compiled Statutes, 1918.

It is true that Christian Scientists entertain a different view of reality or substance than is now generally accepted by most people, but I submit to the readers of the Boston American that this fact furnishes no reason for calling them "crack-brained theorists," nor for asserting that they "amuse themselves by saying there is no disease."

ON PAR WITH OTHERS.

It is well known that Christian Scientists are not below the average of other people for either intelligence or sincerity. They are not "crack-brained," nor are they amusing themselves when they deny that disease possesses the nature of absolute reality. They have abundant reason for concluding that Mrs. Eddy was right when she said that "Reality is spiritual, harmonious, immutable, immortal, divine, eternal. Nothing unspiritual can be real, harmonious, or eternal. Sin, sickness, and mortality are the supposititious antipodes of Spirit, and must be contradictions of reality" (Science and Health, p. 335).

Not long ago, in your column headed "Science Queries and Replies," a qualified writer on natural science said, "I have no idea as to what matter is." Since disease is a form or mode of matter, I submit that one who knows how little is known as to any form of what is called matter is better qualified to express opinions touching it than is one who really denounces Christian Scientists as "crack-brained theorists." I submit, also, that a practice involving health may be both effectual and religious. Jesus was at once the most practical person in the history of the world and the most successful physician.

QUOTES PROFESSORS.

If you will kindly allow me the additional space, I would like also to submit the following quotation from a recent book by Professor Charles F. Kent of Yale and Professor Jeremiah W. Jenks of New York University:

"Gradually the fact is dawning upon us that thoughts are as real forces as gravity or dynamite. The thoughts of God, of which Jesus said so much, we may well believe are infinitely more potent.

"In the age just past we had in our thinking largely reduced the universe to a material mechanism. Is it possible that we were looking simply at the form and that reality is a complex of spiritual forces and agents which, if we but knew, makes prayer and its answer far simpler than the faith which leads us, for example, to go to a telephone receiver and ask and receive the aid of a friend living thousands of miles away?" (Jesus' Principles of Living, page 34).

Sincerely yours,

CLIFFORD P. SMITH.

He took up a [illegible] Mrs. Braessler's home, No. 1 West Sixty-ninth street. As the woman was returning from the theatre with her husband, he fired. Three bullets struck Mrs. Braessler in the right breast. Then Glarney shot himself over the heart.

SPURNED MAN GETS LICENSE TO WED HER

Vacarro, on Trial for Slashing Former Countess von Motz, Persists in His Attentions

Sarro Vacarro, of East Boston, is a determined suitor.

He has wooed Mrs. Helen Keefe Vladimir, former Countess Von Motz and ex-Follies beauty, with an ardor which included a razor, and a revolver. All these failing, and Vacarro receiving nothing for his trouble but a sentence of one year in jail, given to him by Judge Bosson in the Chelsea Court, now has taken out a marriage license in Boston, naming as his bride-to-be, Mrs. Helen Keefe Vladimir.

In the meantime Mrs. Vladimir has announced her engagement to William Batchelder, 30, of Pasadena, Cal., whom she says she will marry on February 15. She admits that she likes Vacarro, but stated that his original style of wooing made him impossible. "But I like the lad" she says. She is 26 and Vacarro is 29.

On December 18, Vacarro was arrested for slashing Mrs. Vladimir's face with a razor because she had told him not to call on her any more. He was sentenced to a year in jail for this, in the lower courts, and appealed the sentence. His trial is now pending in the Superior Court.

Vacarro is alleged to have followed Mrs. Vladimer Friday night and to have fired three shots at her from a revolver. None of the shots struck anything and Mrs. Vladimer refused to press a new charge against Vacarro.

Vacarro followed up the shooting by appearing at the city clerk's office in Revere and obtaining a license to marry Mrs. Vladimer. This license was held up by the clerk after Mrs. Vladimer had repudiated the license in no uncertain terms.

Brakeman falls into tank of icy water--Rem routs cough

A railroad man out on top of freight cars winter and summer is pretty sure to catch some bad coughs in the natural course of events. And when, to make matters worse, he has a mishap such as befell William J. Davis, 631 South Fourteenth street, Baltimore, Md., on the Pennsylvania line between Baltimore and Philadelphia, he's out of luck for fair!

Mr. Davis relates his adventure in the following words:

"Well, sir, the way I got this cold was this way:—it was one of the coldest days of the winter and I was helping the fireman on our train take water. All of a sudden the engine gave a sudden start. It knocked my feet right from under me and I fell right into the tank—up to my waist in icy cold water. I was almost frozen when they got me out. They dried me and warmed me up in the cab, but it left me with a terrible cold and cough."

"I tried different things to get rid of it but it stuck on till a friend of mine told me about Rem. I got a bottle at Carcaud's Drug Store on Eastern Ave. and it soon relieved me. It only took two bottles to get entirely rid of my cough. Rem's great and I wouldn't be without it. I take it on the road with me so I'll have it if I want it."

So many who have tried REM speak of the quick relief it brings.

This quick action is not just a matter of luck for REM contains a special ingredient (too expensive for old-style, slow-acting cough syrups) that causes it to cling to your throat as it is swallowed. And there it spreads a soothing, healing film over the sore, inflamed membranes.

REM doesn't taste a bit bad. Nor does it contain Opiates.

Ask your druggist for REM—in the blue package with the round orange label. If REM doesn't help you can have your money back. Fair enough, isn't it?

"STENO-SIREN" MOST DANGEROUS AFTER HER 30TH YEAR.

BOBBED HER LOCKS TO LURE BOSS

Homely Typist Also Brought in Flowers to Put Them on Employer's Desk

The stenographer has told how the business offices of Boston are filled with men constantly seeking to ensnare them into love affairs. Today the American prints another of a series of interviews with Boston business men.

Are the men always to blame? Read these stories of actual experiences of Boston employers and learn the man's side.

By A BOSS.

I'm no psychologist, but in my simple and unheralded observations I have discovered the most dangerous type of "steno-siren" to be the woman between (let's be generous) thirty and thirty-eight. If she's good looking, she's less dangerous.

That brilliant paradox isn't as deep as it sounds.

It's a rare woman who is good looking who hasn't men friends.

But the homely one!

Probably the only men outside of brothers or uncles that she ever speaks to (excepting the elevator man) are the men in the office. All their charms are expected to please him and many's the wise business man who's bitten.

The pretty stenographer is ornamental and adds much to the impressiveness of an Oriental nursery room, but she wastes too much time.

I have a homely stenographer. My stenographer was hired a year ago. She came to me as a serious faced woman in her thirties. After a few weeks I came in one morning and there was a jar of some kind of spring smelling flowers on my desk.

BRINGS IN FLOWERS.

"Aren't those pretty?" the stenographer asked me.

"Very. Where did they come from?"

"I was out tramping in the woods yesterday and found them."

"They are very pretty," I assured her.

At frequent intervals after that there were flowers blooming on desk.

A bobbed-haired girl came in one morning trying to sell something—books, I imagine. When she went out I remarked to Miss Smith, my youngster, I liked her bob."

It was one of those horish bobs that make a little girl look like a still smaller girl.

Not long after that I came in one morning and didn't recognize Miss Smith. She flushed when I looked at her and then she hurried to explain.

"My hair was so long and such a nuisance that I decided to cut it off."

Believe it or not, she had a "boyish bob."

That bob seemed to have a strange effect on her personality. She grew less sedate, more pretty and not so—miraculous to relate—flirtatious.

A new bat appeared. My admiration was solicited.

BUYS A NEW HAT.

Little motherly services as the job artists might classify them, followed. A thread was picked off my coat, a button sewed on, my sleeve when it was caught on a drawer and pulled off.

The day my tie was askew was the close-up scene in my office scenario.

Miss Smith came over. "Let me fix your tie! It's mussed."

I stood like a dummy. Her lily white fingers worked busily with the offending haberdashery, and a delicate perfume wafted up from the boyish bob. A soft form nestled against me—no corsets.

I hesitated. A glimpse of skin no longer young, lips no longer tempting decided me.

"Can't you fix it?" I asked her. Maybe it was cruel, but certain ills demand certain cures.

She looked up at me. I felt the daggers shave my hairs.

"It's good enough." She sounded a bit snappy, but then who could blame her.

I made a shot at appeasing her. "Say, what kind of perfume do you use? It's wonderful."

She beamed at me.

"Black narcissus."

And now we got along as we did before the bob changed the personality of my excellent employe.

(Another employer's story tomorrow.)

FIGHTING BROOKLINE BLAZE

HELD OUTSIDE BY DENSE CLOUD OF SMOKE

Firemen clustered on a ladder at the Coolidge Corner fire today, pouring tons of water into the building. Captain William Unkles was overcome while on a ladder and was assisted to the street.

BROOKLINE FIRE

men and it was with difficulty hose lines were laid and a stream sent into the cellar where the blaze raged fiercest.

BREAKS OUT ANEW.

Residents of blocks around, aroused by the clanging of apparatus, turned out to watch the battle.

After more than an hour the blaze seemed under control, Suddenly it broke out with fresh vigor and flames shot through the roof of the Farquharson candy shop again.

Service on car lines on Beacon street was tied up and hundreds of downtown workers were late for work as a result.

After burning more than two hours the flames worked their way through the walls to the cellar of the Dorothy Murfel Lunch, at No. 1374 Beacon street.

Fire Captain William Unkles was overcome by smoke and was assisted down a ladder to the street. Hose man Joseph O'Neil received a cut hand from broken glass.

3 Downtown Blazes Keep Firemen on Jump

Three fires, two of them extra alarms blazes, kept Boston firemen on the jump for a period of an hour and caused damage of more than $30,000.

These alarms were sounded for fire in the four-story building at Nos. 125 to 127 Federal street. In the fire stations, only a few minutes before, tappers had sounded out two alarms for a fire which threatened to destroy the steel shop of the Boston Elevated Railway in Alford street, Charlestown.

The downtown apparatus was at the Federal street blaze when a still alarm was sounded for a chimney fire at No. 60 State street. District apparatus responded to this fire.

The Federal street fire was confined to the fourth floor of the building. It is occupied by Grand Berg Wall Paper Company, and the property stored there was destroyed.

Tons of water thrown into the building seeped through the floors and resulted in heavy damage to stock in the Federal Bakery on the first floor. Slater's Shoe Store on the second floor and a storeroom on the third.

At Charlestown fire officials were directing their attention to saving property near the steel shop, which is located in the rear of the Sullivan square Terminal and some distance away.

SOUND SECOND ALARM.

Flames shot from the windows and through the roof and the fighters on their way. Deputy Chief Murray caused the second alarm to be sounded.

Spontaneous combustion is believed by fire officials to have caused the blaze. Damage was $5,000.

At Federal street no cause for the fire could be determined. The loss in this building is more than $25,000.

Sausage Factory Fire Draws Crowd in North End

It took a heavy cordon of police to keep the crowds back at a fire in the attic of the three-story brick building at Nos. 141-143 Blackstone street today.

The fire was confined to the top floor of the building, which is used as a smokeroom by the Boston Sausage & Provision Company. Flames burst through the roof in several places. Engine 4 responded to the alarm and the firemen chopped holes in the roof, through which the hose lines were passed.

Masses of slate were thus dislodged and fell to the street. But for the cordon of police many of the spectators and pedestrians would have been struck by the falling slate.

The cause of the fire has not been ascertained. Damage estimated at $2,500.

GIRLS LEAD IN HIGH SCORES FOR BABIES

Four Perfect Ones, Seven Rating 99 Per Cent. Found in One Day at Tests

Four perfect baby girls, seven baby girls with a score of 99 per cent. and two baby boys with a score of 99 per cent., was the record in high scores in the health tests being conducted in the Jordan Marsh Company Annex under the auspices of the Boston American and the State Board of Public Health, established the second day of the second week of the tests.

Throughout the tests examination by physicians and baby specialists have shown more girls than boys at the top of the list.

An analysis of statistics shows that about twice as many boys as girls fall below the height-weight age standard. A normal American child of a certain age and height should weigh as much as the standard scale shows.

REGULAR GAIN NEEDED.

This figure is not an absolutely final indication of the child's condition, but it is considered a good estimate. Relative to the standard weight scale based on comprehensive statistics, Dr. Fredrika Moore of the State Department of Health said:

"Every child should gain weight regularly. Normal growth in weight and height is probably the best single index of good health and good nutrition during childhood."

GET HIGH RATINGS.

The following babies examined during the day received special mention for good health and mental alertness:

100 per cent. babies:

Irene Nahwonny, No. 62 Chestnut street, Chelsea.

Mary Olive O'Donnell, No. 78 Hillcrest avenue, Brockton.

Ethel Rita Herbert, No. 75 Ambrose street, Revere.

Marjorie Caldwell Coughlan, Revere.

99 per cent. babies:

Elisabeth Jean Sheldon, Norfolk.

Freda Sforzo, No. 168 Hitchborn street, Revere.

Ruth Andleman, No. 280 Brookline street, Cambridge.

Anna Ida Berg Liset, No. 62 Pearl avenue, Beachmont.

Charlotte Muriel Kravets, No. 1604 North Shore Road, Revere.

Kathryn Burns, No. 76 Bay View avenue, Houch's Neck.

Marie F. Smith, South Franklin street, Holbrook.

Paul Lazare Cuenin, No. 12 Bonaster street, Allston.

Willis E. Barnes, Jr. Walpole.

Struggling With Debt

A Dangerous Game. It Means Ruin for Many

Copyright, Leslie's Weekly Co.

If you have a son or an employe given to the bad "lend me ten" habit, show him this editorial. There are thousands of old men for whom the editorial will have a most bitter meaning. But it is a little late to show it to them.

Borrowing, like gambling, is bad, because it is a substitute for real effort.

Borrowing is vicious, because it develops sycophancy, and it means that the borrower, instead of using his strength of will, gratifies self-indulgence and counts on friends to pull him out.

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be," said wise Polonius. But if you must be either, be the lender. For the man who lends and does not get it back only loses his MONEY.

Whereas the man who borrows and does not pay it back loses his character—and the money does him no good.

At Monte Carlo, where the great gambling house is, they always had one rule—"Lend money to nobody."

It was "bad form" in the Prince of Monaco's gambling city to borrow, even from your most intimate friend. The natural reply would be, "Why should I lend you money to gamble; I prefer to gamble it away myself."

The owners of the gambling house—the famous Blanc family—made just one exception to the anti-lending rule.

When a gambler lost and blew his brains out they would advance the money to bury him.

And when a man said, "I have lost everything, and I am going to commit suicide," they would lend him enough to go home, as they did not want corpses lying around the grounds to spoil gayety. But they would make sure that he went home with the money. THEY would buy the ticket.

Needless to say, there is no relationship between the borrowing that expresses weak will and extravagance and the wise borrowing ON SECURITY that enables a man to buy a house and pay for it gradually, or expand his business and develop it more rapidly.

There is a wise borrowing upon which commerce and success are built.

And there is a FALSE, poisonous borrowing, a swamp into which reputation and success sink and disappear.

The money that is borrowed on security, at fair interest, used profitably and repaid, is like the borrowing of a spade with which a man digs in the ground, afterward returning the spade, paying for its use.

The borrowing for personal indulgence from habit or lack of character, for current expenses, would be like borrowing the spade, taking it to the pawnshop, borrowing money on it, and leaving the owner of the spade to get it out.

When a man tries to borrow from you, you know how and why he is borrowing.

There are cases of sickness and death, when one friend borrows from another, and the friend lends gladly as a duty.

But in the case of the average young man borrowing, prove yourself his friend. Show him that you have the character that he lacks, and when he says, "I will give it back on pay day," say to him, "Wait until pay day and you will HAVE IT."

MELLON WOULD HOLD CONTROL OF BUDGET

Washington, Jan. 16—Emphatic opposition to the proposed transfer of the Budget Bureau from the Treasury was voiced today by Secretary Mellon before the Joint Congressional committee on the reorganization of the executive department. Under the reorganization plan the bureau would be made an independent establishment.

Mr. Mellon said the work of the Budget Bureau was so interwoven with that of the Treasury Department that it should remain a part of the department. He agreed that the Public Health Service could well be transferred to another department.

CONVICTS RATE AS HIGH AS FREE MEN IN MENTAL TESTS

CHARACTER OF SLAYERS IS HIGH

Charlestown Prisoners Are Studied by Psychiatrist for Year

By GRACE DES CHAMPS

The man with the gray and white stripes—do you ever think of him?

The 800 gray-clad men in Charlestown State Prison—townsmen of these—do you ever wonder what kind of men they are?

Do they steal and kill because they are inherently bad, or because they are mentally sick?

Are they wilful sinners, who have faith?

The answer to Dr. [illegible] just published report, is that they are neither bad nor mentally sick.

They are [illegible] kind.

SLAYERS RATE HIGH

Dr. [illegible] found that the murderers rated high in intelligence tests. They were above the average for sanity in the prison. Only the sex criminals, who are kept apart from the others, rated below the average.

Dr. Stearns says that the murderers are not to be feared by the prison authorities. They are model prisoners. They are not the ones who break prison rules, or start trouble. Many are properly classified as trusties, and return to society when their time is up.

You may call the murderer to be a [illegible] and you'll be safe. Killing of another is the expression of an impulse. Technically, we call it "assault with intent to express an impulse."

"In other words, if we should sit down to a poker game and it was our custom to carry a revolver, and the game became sharp and heated and we flew into anger at another player, and shot him, it really wouldn't be assault with intent to kill. It would be assault with intent to express our intense anger. And the killing would not necessarily mean that we were not moral."

But [illegible] questions, have taken the place of [illegible]. They vary a good deal as to the person being questioned, but those used are standardized and show much how men with the same education very often react most differently to the same test.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

What is the difference between [illegible] and [illegible]?

Here is how a famous second degree murderer answered:

[illegible] is a discrimination to work [illegible] slightly, it may be [illegible] or forced."

The man is of good character, reasonable and of good mental equipment. He shot and killed a man who he believed was unduly intimate with his wife.

A North End gunman, guilty of first degree murder, in that he planned and carried out a killing, cleverly answered:

"Laziness is badness. Idleness is not a job."

What is the difference between event and advent?

"Advent is a happening, advent the coming of something."

A man who stepped out of a [illegible] and killed with many thousands of dollars gave the following:

GIVE LIKE REPLIES

A [illegible] stock broker who [illegible] on the assault, made the following answer:

"[illegible] Advent is a [illegible] in the church calendar."

But one had the same classical advantages.

A [illegible] Herman Barney, who [illegible] automobiles and killed a policeman, is not a "nut." Neither is Cronin, nor Horn, nor other prisoners at Charlestown State Prison.

during the campaign. So far the eight women members have not figured in the debate.

Vote upon Ramsay Macdonald's motion, by which the Laborites hope to force the Tories out of office, probably will be taken Monday. The motion was designed by the Laborites as an amendment to King George's speech.

Meanwhile, Macdonald, leader of the opposition and most outstanding figure in Commons, is [illegible] with Laborites as to the personnel of the cabinet he expects to form.

Macdonald and his colleagues are striving to avert the threatened strike of locomotive engineers, fearing that the chances of a Labor government would be lessened if the strike is put into effect.

LIBERALS' VICTORY MEANS DEFEAT OF THE MELLON TAX PLAN

WOOD CASE PROBE IS ASSURED

Republican Reactionaries and Democrats Now Hold Control of Congress

By JOHN T. LAMBERT.

Washington, Jan. 16 (I.N.S.).—The smashing victories of the House Liberals to change the rules of Congress today promised to result in:

Defeat of the Mellon tax plan.

Repeal of important sections of the Esch-Cummins railroad law.

Relief on part of the tariff.

Investigation of the affairs of the country's insular possession and sudden rise to wealth of Lieutenant Osborne Wood.

Definite relief for farmers, including a revolving fund to enable them to get enough money to insure their spring planting and to form a public marketing corporation which would fix prices in the hope of barring profiteering by food speculators.

Unless most of these plans are passed, Congress will wind up in a new re-alignment, it is predicted, in which Democrats will join with Republicans in what might be termed a reactionary bloc in that event the Liberals of the West plan to organize a new party.

The Senate and House could have now no fear of a bolt by Democrats and Liberal Republicans control Congress on any given measure.

Democrats will now be forced to accept the control for "cowardly attempting to avoid" for which William Jennings Bryan recently denounced them.

He Moves Right In at Park Theatre to See Marion Davies in "Little Old New York"

MARION DAVIES AT HER BEST, SAY CRITICS

Boston Evening Papers Warmly Praise Star's Work in "Little Old New York"

Dramatic critics of evening papers in Boston sing the praises of Marion Davies in Cosmopolitan's great super film play, "Little Old New York" at the Park Theatre. Excerpts from their criticisms follow:

TRAVELLER—"Little Old New York" was an entertaining play, and it is an equally entertaining picture. It presents an amusing view of the New York of 100 years ago—when it was little more than a small town but unlike the last starring picture of Marion Davies, "When Knighthood Was In Flower," the old time setting is kept in the background and a very charming and tasteful background it is at all times.

As is to be expected in Miss Davies pictures, the star occupies the centre of the screen constantly. There are many, many close-ups of her, even those old fashioned things we believed had gone out with the celebrated songs—close ups in which the star speaks subtitles that have gone before. However, if one must sit through an evening of Marion Davies it is at least a satisfaction to know that she is improving in her work. She is better than she ever was been Sure'y, comedy is her forte

TELEGRAM—"Little Old New York," a superb movie offering, has been Boston and Boston has seen "Little Old New York" with Marion Davies play on the silver sheet.

Being a Modern Boston I feel "Little Old New York" from th drop of the hat.

Marion Davies is already widely known and liked by screen lovers, but in "Little Old New York" she is given the vehicle was made for Marion in several different ways and he make s the best of all opportunities to show her fine skill and care for attention to detailed acting.

ARLINGTON THEATRE REOPENS TONIGHT

Boston's newest venture in entertainment, the Berkeley Comedians will open a season of musical comedy at the Arlington Theatre this evening. The first presentation will be "Irene," a successful musical play that has never before been given in the city at popular prices.

The Berkeley Comedians are announcing an ambitious program of attractions. Talented singers, comedians and dancers have been engaged, to say nothing of a sparkling beauty chorus, and rehearsals have been in progress for three weeks. Under the direction of Erich Berkeley, who, with Gertrude Berkeley, formerly a member of the Ziegfeld "Follies" cast, had charge of the theatre, will direct the forthcoming productions.

It is planned to present only such musical plays as have earned pronounced success and which have not been shown a Boston outside the down town theatres. Following "Irene" there will be presentations of "Mary," "Princess," "Molly Darling," "Lilly Nellie Kelly" and "The O'Brien Girl."

Humorist Took Sufficient Lunch, but Dropped Some Down Man's Neck

By BOOB McNUTT
per Rube Goldberg

THEY told us the show opened at noon, but I didn't have much to do after breakfast except get the pot out of the carpet where I did regular morning stunt called "Shoot the soot from the coal." It was work for the day was over. I loved my Pearl so much I used to meet me in front of the Park Theatre, although she said she had to go to the powder puff maker for a fitting.

I wanted to see Marion Davies in "Little Old New York" because I heard the picture showed that town where I had no taxicabs or subways. I wanted to find out what people did in those days when they wanted to get hurt. I figured they had to leave all the manholes open to let any excitement when out for a walk.

Well, we had to wait around the ticket doors of the theatre opened. We formed a line of two when we got there and four times around before we got in. Pearl pretty near broke my arm as two people in the ticket office fought over who was going to get in first. I wasn't feeling so hot myself having had no lunch.

Wise Boozes Fooled

When we got inside I was with out an appetite, but I took a look at the candy counter and decided to get a box of candy. I thought that the ushers would be impressed by the attention of the polite gentleman and they would give me a better seat, but unfortunately I was making such a show of myself before the audience.

Some kids came and asked me to buy them candy and I bought them a box of candy. I thought that the prize would be in the box, but it was in the box of candy. I thought that the prize would be in the box, but it was in the box of candy. I thought that the prize would be in the box, but it was in the box of candy.

Pearl and I were right annoyed at each other both, even more because I knew I had a perfect right to eat my own sandwiches. A few crumbs dropped on the collar of an old gentleman in front of me. But luckily, he had on new flannel underwear and he blamed it on that.

It takes an awful lot to get me excited. But right in the middle of that prize fight in the firehouse between Bully Boy Brewster and the Hoboken Terror I got so wild I stuffed a piece of candy in each corner of the old lady sitting on the other side of me. The next part of it was she didn't get sore at all. She said "Thanks," and asked me if I couldn't get the recipe from my aunt.

Wanted to Kiss Her

I lost count after Bully Boy was knocked down for seven times and he made the fourth clinch before I realized anything. I wonder if they paid the guy who acted as referee at Utica $1 a regular salary or so much per fall. If he was getting paid on gate receipts I'm sorry for the man who put up the money for the picture. Bully Boy must be a rich man, with a swell home in Hollywood and three sets of knives and forks.

I wanted to jump up and kiss Miss Davies when she rang the fire bell and saved Bully Boy from being slaughtered. He just had enough sense left to put on his fire hat, grab the hose and run to the kitchen to put out the fire. Then the Hoboken Terror hit with the ax and I knew I'd first ass over tea kettle on the floor.

Before the picture was half over I was ready to suggest to Pearl that we go home and have a bite to eat, but I was afraid to do it for fear she would think I was making such a show of myself before the audience.

Some kids came and asked me to buy them candy and I bought them a box of candy. I thought that the prize would be in the box, but it was in the box of candy. I thought that the prize would be in the box, but it was in the box of candy. I thought that the prize would be in the box, but it was in the box of candy.

Pearl and I were right annoyed at each other both, even more because I knew I had a perfect right to eat my own sandwiches. A few crumbs dropped on the collar of an old gentleman in front of me. But luckily, he had on new flannel underwear and he blamed it on that.

It takes an awful lot to get me excited. But right in the middle of that prize fight in the firehouse between Bully Boy Brewster and the Hoboken Terror I got so wild I stuffed a piece of candy in each corner of the old lady sitting on the other side of me. The next part of it was she didn't get sore at all. She said "Thanks," and asked me if I couldn't get the recipe from my aunt.

By JACK CONWAY

Summit, N. J., Jan. 16.—"I shall, once more be middleweight champion of the world after my battle with Harry Greb at Madison Square Garden

RAY TO MAKE ASSAULT ON WORLD'S ONE MILE RECORD

OVERTON MARK IN DANGER

New York Jan. 16—Joie Ray is in Gotham today to make an assault on the world's one mile record at the Fordham University Athletic Carnival tomorrow night. Ray has been training for the event for the past month and is confident that he will be able to lower the present mark. Ray has been a consistent performer at the indoor season at the Silk A. A. meet tonight. He will be a starter in the 1,000 metres race. This is the distance at which the Windy City star intends to race at the Olympe games in Paris this Summer.

Many think it more advisable for Ray to pass up the 1,500 metres in favor of the thousand metres sprint. However, at the present time Ray has his heart set on starting in the shorter race. He believes he can beat the best that any of the European countries can send against him.

Jimmy Connolly.

In the 1,500 metres event Ray will be asked to meet such stars as Lloyd Hahn of Boston, national junior one-mile champion; Willis Sullivan of Georgetown, former metropolitan mile title holder; Jimmy Connolly, intercollegiate one-mile champion; William Goodman, metropolitan one-mile indoor titleholder, and Mel Schaeffer, the latest find from the Knights of St. Anthony.

Ray's time in the 1,000 metres was 2 minutes, 16 seconds flat set up by John Overton, former Yale University star, who gave his life in the war

Ever since Overton made that world's mark Ray has had his heart set upon bettering it. Graduate Manager Frank S. Gerard of Fordham University has arranged a special one mile event at the Fordham University indoor athletic carnival for next Saturday night.

PAL REED SAYS TODD A FAST FIGHTER

Pal Reed says that Roland Todd, the British middleweight champion who will meet Jock Malone in the Mechanics Building Friday night, is the cleverest fighter that ever stepped in the ring with him.

Jock Malone

Reed and the English champion boxed three rounds at Kelley & Hayes' Gymnasium, where Todd gave his first exhibition.

Although Reed, who has battled twice with Malone, thinks that the St. Paul fighter is the greatest man of his weight and inches in the ring, he believes that the Englishman has better than an even chance to beat him because he figures that he is just the type to offset Malone's extreme cleverness.

"In all my career, I never met a fighter who had a faster pair of hands, or who kept so consistently in action," says Reed.

"I met Malone in his first fight in Boston and have seen him in all of his local contests and I am not at all extravagant when I assert that none of the fighters that the St. Paul boxer has battled here measures up to the speed, cleverness and fighting ability of Roland Todd."

He is by far the greatest fighter that Malone has been called upon to meet in a local ring and if Jack gets away with it he will prove that he is the greatest middleweight of the time."

Todd is a hard worker. Before he boxed with Reed in the morning, he had run along the river for ten miles. He boxed also a couple of rounds with Young Tanzey and fully 300 fans who saw him work were amazed at his cleverness and speed

Todd is twenty-four years old He is accompanied by his very charming and beautiful wife, who is the mother of three boys, one, two and three years old respectively. She will have a ringside seat when her husband battles with Malone.

NO SCHEME TO RAILROAD BIG LEAGUERS

By THOMAS L. CUMMISKEY,
Universal Service Sports Editor.

New York, Jan. 16.—Major league club owners, a number of insinuations notwithstanding, have no secret "gentlemen's agreement" to waive or railroad a player of real merit into the minor leagues according to Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants.

It is simply a case, McGraw says, of a player not being wanted for some shortcoming or other of which managers are aware, though the fans may not be, but with everything in the matter of waiving strictly above board. He implied also that some players who have departed in something of a haze of mystery because of ability, are of dispositions not good for a club.

The recent waiving out of the major leagues of Outfielder Elmer Smith of the Yankees, of Pitcher Jack Scott of the Giants, Outfielder Spark Plug" Matthews of the Athletics and Mattox of the Pirates came as a surprise to many. But not to McGraw.

"Waivers were asked on Smith Matthews and Mattox long before the clubs had in mind any deals with major league clubs," said McGraw "I heard that Smith was offered for the waiver price twenty eight days before the Yankees put through the deal for Outfielder Earle Combs of the Louisville Colonels.

"It so happened that deals bobbed up that looked good to the clubs owning these players, and they were let go in exchange As for Smith, he was just a good hitter, a fine pinch-hitter last season, it is true, but a player has to have more than hitting ability to get by in the majors these days

Matthews and Mattox were only fair major league players, and were due to go. Many better youngsters are around who can be had for the same salary.

"Scott was a hard fellow to handle and ungrateful," he continued. "Here was a case where no major league club wanted him, nor did the Louisville club care to have him in the deal that gave us pitcher Wayland Dean.

RINDGE LIKELY TO LOSE TO ENGLISH

By FRED C. LANE.

Rindge Technical's track team appears to have banished all chances they had of topping Boston English High on the banked corners on Thursday when they face the Blue and Blue team at the East Armory in requesting that all three divisions of the track team, namely the juniors intermediates and seniors compete.

Previous to this request by the Rindge officials, the Cambridge schoolboys had a good chance of stepping out on the right foot by scoring a win over the English High tracksters. The enormous student body at English gives it an advantage over most any school in these parts.

Their intermediate and junior divisions have been the strong point of the team for years, in fact it was the performance of the youngsters that won the regimental games last year from Commerce High

Track is in it's infancy at Rindge The first real track team to represent the school in years was originated last Winter and had fairly good success although they did not win any important meets.

As arrangements now stand, it appears that Rindge is in for a good lacing. The senior team of Kane, Jewell, Neal Hughes and others were considered a group hard to beat. Just what Coach Bill Fraser has in the line of juniors and intermediates is unknown. Perhaps he is putting the advancement of the sport ahead of a victory.

Should such be the case, then his request for English High to run its intermediate and juniors is a good one. There is no better way rounding out a successful full track team than developing the talent in its early stages of development.

The field events of this dual meet will be run off tomorrow afternoon at the English High drill hall, to be followed by the running events on Thursday at the East Armory.

Jewell and Kane are the outstanding stars of the dash men at the Cantab school. Jewell is forward of the two and will be a hard man to beat over the 300 yard route he is of the English High flyers. It might as well right here that no sport has grown with a greater ways of popular than soccer In all sections of the country huge throngs turn out for the big matches The sport is not confined to clubs only, but the colleges in the East support varsity teams. A majority of the high and preparatory schools of the country have taken to the sport

The fact that there is less chance of injury in this game as compared to our American game of football has caused many of those in charge of sports to recommend the taking up of soccer a preference to allowing their charges to engage in football.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Nothing succeeds like success.

People like to become associated with winners.

Investors naturally are attracted by companies that are doing well, by companies that are making money and paying dividends.

Most companies that are growing need more capital from time to time; in other words, they need additional investors. As the country expands and progresses, the probability is that the demand for capital will become keener and keener.

Can anything be done that is not now done by successful companies to bring themselves to the favorable notice of people with money to invest in enterprises earning satisfactory profits?

May I offer one suggestion?

I have never been able to comprehend why corporations that distribute millions of dollars every year among stockholders utterly fail to capitalize that fact. Most of them issue such diminutive dividend notices that you would think they were ashamed to have it become known that their securities were dividend paying investments. I rather think this fossilized practice springs from the mistaken notion that it is wrong not to draw attention to a concern's profits. The truth is that the public has more respect for a successful than an unsuccessful organization. Nobody wants to have anything to do with losers.

Every alert executive is today alive to the immense surplus value of having his stock distributed among the largest possible number of investors.

Now, there is no better form of advertisement, to my mind, than a prominently displayed notice that a corporation is distributing a creditable amount of dividends. Many a dime executives imagine everybody knows what rates of dividends they are paying. They feel this way because they know it so well themselves. But ask ten ordinary citizens what dividend rate is paid by this or the next company and thirty minutes after the publication of the latest quarterly dividend notice of the United States Steel Corporation nine out of ten will be unable to answer correctly.

Here, then, is an opportunity to do fine advertising to investors and also to the public at large.

The Corn Exchange Bank of New York has attracted a great deal of favorable attention and no little business by dropping publication of merely the customary "statement of condition," which all banks are compelled by law to print quarterly. Instead, this institution briefly but lucidly explains the meaning of each item in its statement so that the average layman can understand what it is about.

One of the best-managed companies in the United States, in my judgment, is the Pacific Gas & Electric Company. Its vice-president, A. F. Hockenbeamer, is a very wide-awake executive. He has not overlooked the advertising value of the right kind of dividend notice—used to advertise business, his trade journals. Recognizing the value of this suggestion if carried out executives throughout the country, it will be useful to present here a recent dividend notice published by the progressive company:

PACIFIC GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY.

Thirty-seventh consecutive quarterly dividend of first preferred stock.

The regularly quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share upon the preferred cumulative stock of this company will be paid on February 15, 1923 to stockholders of record at close of business October 31, 1923. The transfer books will not be closed.

Twelve months to August 31, 1923.

Gross earnings, $10,377,688

Net after taxes, etc., $10,556,709.

Surplus for preferred stock after price charges and depreciation, $6,885,778.

Dividends paid on preferred stock, $3,002,411.

Balance, $3,883,367.

Earned per share on preferred stock, $12.92.

Dividends paid 15th February, May, August and November.

A. J. HOCKENBEAMER,
Vice-pres dent and Treasurer.
San Francisco Cal.

Of course, in order to have such a notice yield the best possible result it should be much more prominently displayed than this. Also, some additional information could properly be given, as, for example, the number of stockholders receiving the dividend checks and probably the approximate yield based on those buying the stocks at current prices.

STELLA DALLAS — By Olive Higgins Prouty

New and Intensely Interesting Serial of a Marriage of an Educated Man to an Untutored Woman

HOW THE STORY STARTED

Stella Dallas and her husband, Stephen, do not live together. They have a daughter, thirteen years old, named Laurel, who stays most of the year with the mother. They visit a Summer hotel in New England, where the other guests look askance at the painted, overdressed elder woman. The time has come for Laurel to visit her father in New York. He meets her at the station and takes her to a hotel. She goes to visit Mrs. Morrison. The story now goes back to the marriage of Stephen and Stella at Milhampton. Stella starts a flirtation with Alfred Munn. The leading women of the town begin to drop her. Stephen, deciding he can never go back to her, starts a divorce suit. The story then goes back to Mrs. Morrison's marriage to her aged millionaire suitor. The latter dies and Stephen confesses his love to the widow. Stella and Laurel get in with a society set at a Summer hotel and Laurel goes canoeing with Richard Grosvenor.

"I've heard a lot about you," said Stella

"WELL, funny or not, I had to come. I thought of writing at first, but, gracious, if a thing is important enough to you, you'll do it rig it away, at least the way that seems right to you—whatever anyone thinks.

"There are some things I had to s[ee] know that nobody but you could tell me, so I decided to come right down here myself and ask them."

"That was the right way."

"I've heard a lot about you."

"And so have I—heard a lot about you."

"From Laurel I mean."

"Yes I [know]

"I [ ] about you, but Laurel [ ]. as a lot of you [ ]

He smiled. "And I suppose you've [ ] but [ ] a lot of you"

"Well I [ ] to [ ] to [ ] a sort of [ ] it when I [ ]

[ ]tes to have me call it that. She [ ] "I talk about you very much, now. Thinks I might be jealous or something, I guess. Perhaps I was little at first, though I hardly knew it. Laurel did, though I bet her. Does the sort of child Knows what you feel before you [ ]

[ ]ft, they [ ]h we heard Stella was the first to look away. She cleared her throat, coughed, made another attempt.

"How's Stephen now?"

"I think he's well."

"I suppose you see him now and then."

"No. The last few times Laurel has visited me, Miss Simpson has Stephen and I haven't met for two years."

Straight her, and taken her away.

"Oh, that's so?" Stella looked [ ] at Mr. Morrison. Grac[ious] What had I [ ]? The [ ]ning look hurt all gone from her eyes and the light from her expression. She looked gray, a[ ]hen, and old, terribly old

"Look here, Mrs. Morrison," Stella went on. "I'm not going to [ ]k about the hush any longer. I've been thinking a good [ ] lately of the advantages to me if I got things fixed up between Stephen and myself. [ ] wanted [ ] fixed [ ] ago. But before I [ ] I want to [ ] it. Now I [ ] and you.

He [ ]stened [ ] [ ] upon her [ ] [ ]

"We would," Ji[ ]en rejoined. "Are you sure?"

ANECDOTES OF FAMOUS

Mr Compton Carr, in his 'Kindergarten Victorians,' tells the following story about Robert Brown Ince: The great engineer came to our house in Glasgow in the years between 1880 and 1885. In our society circle he was known as an intimate friend and he was both kind and true. I think he was not intelligent to avoid living but he was always content with our simple fare—more than content, certainly, if he were allowed the bottle of port wine and to be served at dessert as he was use it but to be quaffed the rich dinners as an accompaniment to every course.

His appreciation of wine never immoderately indulged, must I suppose, have been inherited for he used to tell a story of his father's indignation on the occasion of his once asking for a glass of water. 'Water Robert!' exclaimed the elder Brownrigg in dismay. 'For washing purposes it is I believe often employed and for nauseable carats I admit it to be indispensable but for drinking, Robert, God never intended it.'

In his "Recollections of a Rolling Stone," Bret Harte tells the following on Mark Twain: "On one occasion he invited the British Embassy to hear a reading of extracts from his works in aid of some charity. The price of admission was a guinea and the hall was crowded with American and British aristocracy resident in Paris.

"When the reading which was extremely well received was over I met Mark coming slowly and pensively up the passage in the Rue de Rivoli, and when we had talked for a few minutes and I had congratulated him on the afternoon's success, I noticed that he seemed to be subdued. 'What is it, Mark?' I said. 'You look depressed.' 'I am depressed,' he said. 'After reading for an hour and getting a lot of money for that charity, the only criticism I overheard as I was coming out with the crowd was, "What a beastly American accent that man has!"'

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

SO many people are satisfied with their looks it's a shame that they can't copyright their faces.

RAND & McNALLY patent their maps and there ought to be some way for us to protect ours.

BUT if you happen to own a face like your next door neighbor, you'd have to get his permission to keep on wearing it.

EVERY mother would have to send her babies to Washington to get them patented.

THE kid would come back with a bunch of O. K.'s tattooed all over him.

INSTEAD of having his picture taken, his mother would have to get bust prints made.

IF a man in New York looks exactly like some guy in Omaha, it's up to the older one to complain to the government.

THEN when this patent law goes into effect, the younger fellow will have to get rid of his face.

THE government won't care what you do with it as long as you destroy it.

OF course, if you don't look too much like anybody else then all you'll have to do is make a few alterations.

THEN after you've finished these changes, the copyright bureau in Washington will give you a certificate stating that your face belongs to you.

SERIOUS THOUGHTS COME AT LAST TO THE DODGER OF UNPLEASANTNESS

YOU may be worried because you realize that the light buoyant spirit you have enjoyed for so many years is gradually leaving you, and longer and longer grow the periods of nonchalant-carefree times when troublesome thoughts reign.

If you are thus affected, is it not true that up to the time you have given little thought to the future, and what it has in store for you?

You have moved along as easily as possible, putting aside everything which might worry or annoy you a regular dodger of unpleasantness.

Really it is unfortunate that you have put off the day of serious thought for so long, for serious thought is necessary in every man's life.

If you had an idea that you could pass your entire life in carefree, free joyousness you were mistaken, and it is well that you are awake.

Had a pretty good time in life so far, haven't you? But you have reached a point where He should be something more than cheerful thoughts and absence of real responsibility.

Do not let serious thoughts hit you for your daily work, but let them come in time to make your latter days easier because you planned right.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper for the groom to wear a dark suit if the bride wears a veil at a church wedding to be held at 5 P. M.

YES—informal but perfectly proper.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We intend to have, within the next few weeks and I would like a party in our new home. [illegible] about a dozen or eighteen friends. Will you please [illegible] the wording of printed [illegible]

ADRIANNE.

A FORMAL invitation [illegible] read:

Mr and Mrs John Fuller [illegible] at home

On Tuesday

the ninth of December

from four until seven o'clock

Three Hundred Fifteenth Avenue

You may have this printed or engraved or written by hand on a small, stiff card.

Should you are asking so few guests, why not write an informal invitation on a sheet of white note paper? Something like this:

Dear Cynthia

Jack and I are decorating our new home at No. 300 Fifteenth avenue on Tuesday, the ninth of September. Won't you and Dick come in at any time between 4 and 7 to help at its christening? It won't be a home until such good friends as you two have participated in its hospitality. May we anticipate welcoming you then?

With best regards from both and best wishes, from us both, I am, most cordially yours.

Josephine Campbell Irving.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

(1) What is the proper form for an invitation to an engagement dinner?

(2) How should the parents of the bridegroom-to-be be invited to the dinner?

(3) Also what is the best time to serve such a dinner?

E. E. A.

YOU may write notes to the guests explaining that it is to be an engagement dinner. Or, at the stationer's you can purchase engraved cards that can be filled in, and at the bottom you could write "Engagement Dinner" or "Betrothal Dinner." These cards are engraved as follows:

.....

requests the pleasure of

company at .....

on .....

at.....o'clock

.....

.....

The last line is for the address.

(2) It would be more polite if, before you send out the invitations, you would call on them (if they live near enough) and tell them first about the dinner. Then, if you wish, you could also send them a card when the other cards are being mailed.

(3) Eight o'clock is the best hour for a dinner, if you are not taking your guests later to the theatre or opera or some other entertainment.

FOOLISH MESSAGES ANNOY BROADCAST LISTENERS

The American monitor station operator last night again caught the Independent Wireless Telegraph Co. in a direct defiance of the rights of broadcast listeners.

At 9:38, KWF, the steamer Iroquois, with an Independent wireless operator, called KWH, the steamer Huron, also an Independent operator, and asked if he was being received well.

On being told by the Huron operator to go ahead on 450 meters, the Iroquois operator sent, on 450 meters, a "deadhead" message from the captain of the Iroquois to the captain of the Huron.

A "deadhead" message is one for which no charge is made.

The message was nothing more than an expression of good wishes, a comment on the fine weather and a hope for a pleasant voyage.

Following the message, the Iroquois operator sent a "service" message to the Huron. A "service" message is one having to do with the details of transmission.

SERIOUS INTERFERENCE.

The service message was a request to the Huron to change the message from a deadhead to a frank for Captain McKenzie, by whom the message was signed.

There was nothing about the message that could not have waited until after 11 o'clock.

Instead it was sent on 450 meters in the height of the broadcasting period, so that it caused serious interference.

C. J. Pannill, vice-president of the Independent Wireless Telegraph Co., has repeatedly told both the American and the various fans who have written him personally that nothing, but urgent messages are handled on 450 meters during the broadcasting periods.

Special amenities between the captains of two vessels and Christmas greetings to Hollywood movie stars are evidently "urgent" messages.

INTERFERENCE LOG, NO. 15.

(All interference logged on 450 meters unless otherwise specified.)

9:24—KVF working WSA, the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company shore station at East Hampton, L. I.

9:28—Someone testing.

9:38—KVF calling KVH, American steamship Huron, Independent Wireless Telegraph Company operator, asking QRK? (How are you receiving me?)

9:38—KVH answers QRK but QRM GA 450 try (I am receiving you well, but am getting interference, go ahead on 450 meters and we will try.)

9:25—KVF then calls KVH and transmits a deadhead message to the captain of the Huron from the captain on the Iroquois, commenting on the fine weather. KVF follows this transmission with this SVC (service message) "SCV KVH" (Have made new 1 and no 1 both Franks for Captain McKenzie.

(Nothing about this transmission that couldn't have waited till after 11 p. m. or else been sent on another wave-length.)

9:44—KVF working KVH.

9:55 to 10:00—Time signals from various broadcasting stations.

10:27—Some ship (Very poor operator on board) calling WTH, the Radio Corporation of America's shore station at Chatham, Mass.

10:26—WTH does not answer this ship on 450 meters, so the ship calls WSA. Did not hear WSA answer him either. Either the operator didn't make his own letters plain enough, ...

HOW TO KEEP WELL
By Dr. Mahoney

By DR. FRANCIS X. MAHONEY, Boston Health Commissioner.

WHEN you go out into the cold, particularly if it is extremely cold, be sure to be well wrapped and keep moving because cold depresses heart action. When you feel a numbness or tingling in the ears, nose, fingers or toes, you will know that the circulation is being suspended. These first symptoms are followed by loss of feeling or sensation.

Dr. Mahoney

Therefore, keep the exposed parts of your body warm, and also those parts that have the least covering and come in contact with the cold air.

Circulation may be restored to the frozen parts if not too long exposed, and if proper treatment is carried out. There is great danger in neglect, because if the exposure has been long, and the cold intense, the parts are probably hopelessly frozen and gangrene will set in.

The frozen parts may appear natural for a few days, but later you will notice a discoloration followed by a bluish color which finally becomes black. If you have been long exposed to the cold do not allow yourself to lie down and go to sleep, because one of the effects of the freezing cold is an overpowering sense of drowsiness.

RUB ON SNOW

Do not bring the patient near the fire until the circulation is restored to the frozen parts. If snow is available rub some of it on the frozen member until the natural color of the part returns. If there is no snow to be obtained, bathe the affected part with a woolen cloth soaked in cold water.

If the frost bite is old and the part has turned black or become scaley do not rub it, but rather treat it as a burn by using vaseline, carron oil, sweet oil, linseed oil, baking soda or a saturated solution in water. If none are available try kerosene.

If a person is apparently dead from exposure to the cold, apply friction to the entire body and also artificial respiration should be practiced. Even if it appears that there is no hope, continue the treatment. There are many cases on record of recovery after several hours of suspended animation. In the meantime get in touch with medical assistance.

Do not rub or scratch affected parts to the extent that you will break or crack the skin, because you may cause the part to be infected.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Dear Doctor—In the house in which I live and pay rent for in Boston there is a cesspool and no sewer. Should not a sewer be provided for this house? READER.

Answer: There are comparatively few houses in Boston that are not connected by a drain to the street, and this is the law. Only where a structure is temporary, or where there is no sewer in the street, is a cesspool allowed.

Dear Doctor—Is sulphur good to fumigate with, and what are its disadvantages? W. J.

Answer: Sulphur is highly efficient as a destroyer of insects and vermin. If used in a room it bleaches colors, corrodes metals and has a tendency to disintegrate fabrics. The more moisture there is in the air of the room the greater the damage. Heavy oil, grease or gasoline, if rubbed on metal surfaces will protect them and the damage to exposed fabrics may be minimized if they are washed immediately.

Dear Doctor—In a general way what is the cause of infant mortality? K. O. C.

Answer: There are many things that contribute to infant mortality, some of which can be controlled or be avoided. Newcombine summed the matter of infant mortality when he said: 'Infant mortality is the most sensitive index we possess of social welfare. If babies were well born and well cared for, their mortality would be negligible. The infant death rate measures the intelligence, health and right living of fathers and mothers, and standards of morals and sanitation of communities and governments, the efficiency of physicians, nurses, health officers and educators.'

Dear Doctor—My baby often becomes feverish and restless and fretful. How can I cure him of this? T. J. M.

Answer: Your baby is either uncomfortable because it has not been properly fed and taken care of, clothing is disarranged, it is sick and ailing, or has partaken too much of food and drink.

Dear Doctor—Is fresh killed meat the best meat to eat?

F. B. E.

Answer: It is advisable not to use meat immediately after slaughter because it is tough and lacks a sweet and appetizing taste. It should be allowed to hang for a period of fifteen to twenty days in a temperature of cold preservation. In that time it becomes more tender and is palatable.

High Phone Boards

Editor Boston American:

I thank you for your editorial in Saturday night's American in regards to high phone boards. Your editorial struck the nail on the head. The American was the only Boston paper that gave the operators a square deal during the strike.

For ten years I was a "B" operator in one of the metropolitan exchanges. An average "B" operator puts up as many as 500 to 1000 calls an hour and is under the tremendous physical strain working on such high boards.

It has developed many cases of appendicitis among the girls.

M. WO.

Wants Plainer Print

Editor Boston American:

In reply to your invitation as to ife, ands, likes and dislikes of your paper, I will say that I read it every day in the week and I find it a very interesting paper. I so sooner get home at night than one of my boys will say, "Pa, give me the funny part." If I were going to make suggestions as to any favors I would ask that the print on the funny parts would be made more legible especially for us old folks to read.

In regards to your Helping Hand department, I think it is one of the best institutions of that kind I have ever seen in print.

BARNEY SCHERMERHORN.

Start a Forum

Editor Boston American:

I would say that the columns of your paper could be put to better use than with foolish pictures of Gray Katie and Jerry on the Job. Why not make those pages an open forum where something for the benefit of the by-products of civilization —I mean the poor—could be discussed. PAT MURPHY.

Leak in New Haven R. R.

Editor Boston American:

In view of the railroads' contemplated increases in fares for suburban lines, I offer for your investigation, what I consider one of the big financial leaks of the New Haven system.

On the short haul lines in prewar times, the conductor always collected the tickets after leaving the South Station and Back Bay that were good to Dorchester, Ashmont and Jamaica Plain and cost five for a quarter. Tickets for stations beyond these points were left with the passenger and collected after these stations were passed which meant that a passenger had to buy a ticket through to his destination.

Today the conductor collects all tickets after leaving South Station and Back Bay, thus a person may ride to Dedham on a Readville ticket, River on the Fairmont, or farther on a Dorchester ticket or even on a ticket of a station nearer to Boston. The same may be done traveling to Quincy.

Why not let one of your investigators look into this and show up one of the big leaks, instead of roasting the buck to the public for dead-head riders?

A PASSENGER.

Plenty of Fish in the Sea

Editor Boston American:

I often see remarks about the way the twentieth century young men treat girls. Now: Don't keep him, girls, if he does not treat you right. You are afraid. Give him the shake and then keep your eyes peeled for a decent and considerate fellow. I speak from experience.

V. W. R.

Married Stenographers

Editor Boston American:

Mrs. Charles A. Miller has the right idea when she approves of married women working. Is it not generally the girl who changes her position about every two weeks and is a failure in business who disapproves of married women working? Isn't it much better for a woman who is married to be working than staying home thinking up expensive ways to pass the time? We find that women who work is to be congratulated—and more power to her!

ROSELYN (Unmarried.)

Gives Real News

Editor Boston American:

My opinion is that the Boston American is the cleanest paper then, is printed. You not only give the news but you give the readers the right dope and the radio section is unsurpassed, the sport sheet could not be better, and last, but not least, the comic section alone is worth the "vast amount of three whole papers." I am not writing to give the American extra praise because it praises itself more than any reader can.

THE HELPING HAND

Clothes For Family

Editor Helping Hand:

I have some articles of clothing that some of your readers might be able to utilize. There is a brown serge suit that would fit a girl about eighteen, two serge dresses for a girl about size 16, one blue serge dress, two blue suit coats for a medium sized woman, a girl's white knitted skirt, one black leather sport coat, and a few articles which might be of use to some needy mother, who is seventy-one years old. I would be thankful for anything suitable for the baby, as I haven't got much. She is rather large for her age, possibly a year or a year and a half old, so could be fitted to suit her. I can sew a little myself.

MRS. H. A. S.

Cold Weather Clothing

Editor Helping Hand:

I have some things including a coat, size 38 and 40, suit, size 40, sweaters, men's "underwear, etc., which could be used now in the cold weather. MRS. A. R.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. B. F., whose husband is out of work, and who will be grateful for these things.

Will Care For Family

Editor Helping Hand:

I have read with much interest and pleasure the letter of appreciation of Mrs. L. E. R., as appeared in your paper today. I am perfectly happier than she in the knowledge that the little assistance I rendered brought joy to her and her little ones. If you, Mr. Editor, will furnish me with the address of this most worthy woman, I can give you every assurance that I will provide for the wants of her family until they no longer require aid. H.

This is a fine offer, and we thank you sincerely. You have been sent Mrs. L. E. R.'s address.

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you please send me the address of someone who could use the following articles: Four girls' dresses, size 10 to 12; two girls' petticoats, size 6; one girl's coat, size 6; one girl's middy blouse, size 12; one man's mackinaw, size 40; one man's shirt, size 14 neck; two scarfs for a child going to school. We will send them parcel post.

I am a widow with a ten-months-old baby and would like to know if you could help me to get some warm dresses for her, as I find it quite hard to get along. I also have to take care of my aged mother, who is seventy-one years old. I would be thankful for anything suitable for the baby, as I haven't got much. She is rather large for her age, possibly a year or a year and a half old, so could be fitted to suit her. I can sew a little myself.

"The Ginter Girl," a rollicking musical revue in two acts and eleven scenes, was presented by the Ginter Employes Benevolent Association at Jordan Hall. How can we better New England's commerce, industry and living conditions? You tell us. Each Wednesday the minutes of the 1924 Minute Men of New England will be found on this page.

BOSTON AMERICAN
LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND
BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1924

Next week there will be facts about New England's pressing problems. They will be a compound of optimism and pessimism, inspiration and gloom. They must be faced squarely and thoughtfully by New Englanders.

A Call to the Minute Men of 1924

The American Dedicates This Page to the Service of New England

Wednesday, each week, the Boston American will contribute this page to promote the happiness and prosperity of the people of New England.

The observer from New York, Ohio, Michigan, Kansas or California tells us we are losing these New England essentials of leadership:

The rugged daring that made our forefathers pioneers in all lines of business; the aggressiveness that built our ships and sent them braving the seas in all parts of the world.

The moral strength which made New Englanders sign the Constitution; the intellectual leadership of the days of Emerson, Thoreau, Hawthorne, Webster, Longfellow and Beecher.

The observer speaks of the menace to our manufactures from the factories of the South and West. He says industry is leaving us, because industry cannot compete under our progressive laws which give the worker a forty-eight-hour week and protect the child from long hours at the work-bench or spindle.

He intimates we are approaching the time when all that will be left to us will be the NEW ENGLAND CONSCIENCE.

Is the outside observer right? The purpose of these pages is to promote discussion of New England's present and future.

Plymouth Rock was the stepping stone of Liberty, and that is one of the reasons why our eyes mist with proud tears as we think of New England.

The Minute Men of Lexington and Concord's embattled farmers unfurled Freedom's standard, and held her colors high, and that is why our hearts beat faster as we think of what our home meant to them.

John Brown of Torrington, Conn.; Harriet Beecher Stowe of Litchfield, Conn.; William Lloyd Garrison of Newburyport, and Charles Sumner of Dorchester, took up the fight to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and to posterity, as the Constitution puts it. They struggled for thirty years until the guarantee of Freedom to all was pledged under President Lincoln . . . and for that we stand in awe of these great early sons and daughters of New England. Brown was hanged, but "his soul goes marching on."

In the harbor of Portsmouth, N. H., on July 4th, 1776, was raised the first Stars and Stripes that ever flew from an American man of war. John Paul, afterwards John Paul Jones, was the captain. The Alfred was his ship. From New England he set forth upon the most brilliant career of gallantry and fighting the sea has ever known. To us of New England, Jones' curt phrase that snatched victory from defeat, comes booming down the centuries—the drum call to battle—the daily inspiration to progress and triumph:

"I Have Just Begun to Fight."

We think of Boston, New Bedford, Gloucester, as the harbors of the wonder clipper ships of the new world—built of Maine timbers. They were long and sharp of bow, greatest beam lying abaft, capable of fifteen knots an hour—a speed to outstrip the steam yachts of many millionaires today.

The silks and spices, coffee and cocoa, sugar and sperm, cleared through Boston in those days—the first American Atlantic port—closer to Europe and nearer to Europe today, if our railroads were only as good as our natural advantages.

JOHN PAUL JONES

The Navy's First Minute Man

Who was John Paul Jones? A native of Scotland, the son of a gardener, he came to this country when twelve years old, apprenticed to a shipmaster in the American trade, and later turned out to be the first great "go-getter" and most famous up-to-the Minute Man of the American Navy.

At thirty years of age, he was the terror of the sea, had taken many prizes from the British, destroyed many of their ships of war and ravaged the coast of England and Scotland. When not quite thirty-two, he commanded at the greatest battle in naval history. His audacity on that occasion has never been equalled. With a fleet of eight, he tackled and destroyed a fleet of forty-one British warships, at the head of which sailed the proud "Serapis."

Jones, according to vivid history and popular imagination, lashed his flagship, "Bon Homme Richard," a converted merchantman, to the "Serapis," an antagonist greatly superior in armament and men, and fought hand-to-hand until the "Serapis" struck her colors.

It was during this engagement, when the "Bon Homme Richard" was all ablaze, when some of his officers counselled him to surrender, that he spoke the inspiration which makes the American Navy unbeatable: "Never. I have just begun to fight."

When he put into Paris, he received the hero's ovation. Later, Congress gave him a gold medal and a vote of thanks. His real reward is the everlasting homage of the free American people.

The clipper packet Sully, sailing from Havre, brought young Sam Morse of Charlestown, Mass., home with the Adelphi gold medal pinned to his breast by the Duke of York for his magnificent sculpture, the Dying Hercules. While he walked the deck, the inspiration came to him for the electric telegraph. For eleven years one of the world's greatest inventions was ridiculed and laughed at until in the last hour of a midnight session, Congress voted $30,000 to build a line from Washington to Baltimore. It was Sam Morse of Charlestown who gave us the code by which telegraph is sent today. He gave us the first submarine cable and the first daguerrotype machine—always fighting against the prejudice of those days; often down, never out, always "just begun to fight."

Stockbridge, Mass., gave to America its first great merchant in Cyrus Field, who laid the first trans-Atlantic cable.

Alexander Graham Bell of Boston, fired by the work of Sam Morse, defied the ridicule of America, of his own household, while working to develop the telephone. Although his college rejected him, friends hooted him, and certain relatives shunned him, his spirit was never downed.

Spencer, Mass., gave the world Elias Howe and the sewing machine. On this continent and in New England he was laughed at as a fool inventor. His patents were infringed. He fought adversity from 1847 until 1854, when his rights were acknowledged.

Westboro, Mass., gave us Eli Whitney. He worked his way through school and built his own tools to invent the cotton gin. Thieves stole his machine, and lawsuits wiped out the $50,000 South Carolina had voted him for his invention. Years later he made his fortune by the manufacture of firearms, being the first man to start factory mass production of parts for assembling later.

Name a hamlet of New England, and someone can name a writer, a poet, a jurist, a painter, a warrior, a statesman, a scientist, a merchant, a banker, a clergyman, a showman, who has impressed his work and his name on the everlasting scroll of fame. And someone can tell you of a struggle that swept victory from the trumpet call of defeat.

New England gave to America her arts and her literature, her commerce and her independence, her banking and her business standards. We ARE patriotic. We have reason for pride.

Yet, there are those who say we are content to rest upon the reputation of our ancestors. Their money built New England. Their money opened the mines, laid the rails, developed the water power of the Central and then of the Western States.

As this is being written, we have reports of mills closing or going on three-day time about New England.

Is New England going ahead? Is New England standing still? Is New England going behind? Many men are of many minds on this question. They think we need harbor development, railroad expansion, freedom from antiquated building regulations, change of manufactures, rotation of industrial crops, a loosening of old hands on purse strings to youthful enterprise.

We invite all who have ideas that will speed the growth of industry, of commerce, and the welfare of the individual worker to join the Minute Men of 1924.

New England has just begun to fight.
